Strong Forces of Planes in Block-Buster Attack

Duisburg Target of Heavy Raid

By WILLIAM B. DICKINSON
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, March 27.—A strong force of British and Canadian four-engined bombers resumed the Allied pre-invasion aerial offensive against Germany last night with a block-buster raid on Duisburg that left the great inland port and steel city blasted and burning.

Returning pilots told of observing many large fires, including new conflagration that painted the clouds a vivid red. One pilot said he saw three large explosions, each lasting 10 seconds.

The air ministry's announcement that a strong force participated in the raid indicated that the participating planes may have numbered in the hundred with bomb tonnage approaching the 1,000-mark. Targets may have included the big Augustthyssen steel works.

57TH RAID ON CITY

It was the 57th raid of the war on Duisburg, Germany's biggest inland port, but the first since Dec. 20.

Swinging back into action after being grounded for three nights by fog, the British bombers cascaded two and perhaps four-ton block buster demolition bombs and hundreds of incendiaries on Duisburg.

Other planes made subsidiary raids elsewhere in the Ruhr valley, the arsenal for Hitler's war machine. Four bombers were lost out of the "strong force" participating in the night's raids, a communique announced.

Duisburg, 15 miles from Dusseldorf, is situated at the junction of the Rhine and Ruhr rivers and has a population of 400,000. It is one of the biggest railroad junctions in the Ruhr area.

TWO R.C.A.F. PLANES LOST

Two of the missing bombers in last night's raids were from the Royal Canadian Air Force.

While the bombers were resuming their offensive against Germany, British fighters swept over France and other occupied countries on offensive patrols. Two were lost.

The Duisburg attack was the first on Germany since the 1,000-ton bombing raid on nearby Essen, home of the great Krupp arms works, the night of March 12 and ended the lull that followed the raid Monday night on the German submarine base at St. Nazaire on the French Atlantic coast.

Sudden Drive By Americans Making Gains

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN TUNISIA, March 27.—(AP)—American forces in central Tunisia have launched a surprise drive toward Fondoux, and first reports said they were making good headway.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, March 27. — The British Eighth Army has carried out a successful attack against one sector of the Mareth line and is inching farther into Axis positions in the face of stern, determined opposition.

(Rodio Algiers said British infantry, in a cold-steel bayonet attack, had gained ground in the Mareth area.)

Today's Allied communique indicated that the northern front, where the Allies apparently have been content to conduct a holding operation, was coming to life. Patrols from the British First Army conducted large reconnaissance actions, inflicting casualties and taking prisoners.

HOLD AIR SUPERIORITY

The tide of battle in the air continued to run heavily in favor of the Allies. Eight enemy planes were destroyed yesterday against an Allied loss of one. Axis pilots made a weak raid against the Algiers area and dropped a few bombs. Two of the raiding planes were destroyed.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army, supported by tremendous aerial power, appeared to be slowly wearing down the German-Italian forces in the Mareth Line. The communique reported that prisoners were falling into the bands of the Eighth Army men, indicating a slow but steady advance.

Two-ton block busters were used bl the western desert air force to help reduce the Mareth fortifications and to make raids far behind Axis lines. One squadron leader said enemy camps "just ceased to exist" under the impact of the big bombs.

LOCAL ACTIVITY

There was nothing more than local activity in south-central Tunisia where two American columns are edging toward the sea in an attempt to cut off Axis forces in the Mareth Line.

(A British military observer in London said that Rommel probably has eight divisions—normally 120,000 men—or the remnants of them concentrated behind the Mareth Line and as far to the northwest as Gabes, 25 miles up the coast).

Predicts German Defeat in 2 Years

CINCINNATI, March 27.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Levin Campbell, United States chief of ordnance, today predicted invasion of the European continent as soon as the Allies control the African situation and added that Germany would be out of the war within two years, followed shortly by Japan.

Gen. Campbell, here for an address tonight, indicated to a press conference that invasion might be attempted along the Mediterranean shores, described by Prime Minister Churchill of England as "the soft underbelly of Europe."

"I feel sorry for the Italians," Campbell said. "They are in the wrong geographical spot for what's going to happen. Fire power is going to clean up the continent and pave the way for the foot soldier."

Top British-U.S. Diplomats Meet

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—A British-American conference of top diplomatic figures was scheduled at the White House today, preceded by a luncheon meeting between President Roosevelt and Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary.

Starting with the luncheon engagement, Eden was invited to be a White House guest overnight.

Invited to the mid-afternoon conference besides Eden were Viscount Halifax, the British ambassador; William Strang of the British foreign office; State Secretary Cordell Hull; Undersecretary Sumner Welles; John G. Winant, the ambassador to London who is home on leave, and Harry Hopkins, special assistant to the president.

500 British Agents Drop Into Norway

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—A Swedish dispatch quoted by the United States office of war information today said 500 British agents and 500 Norwegians have been dropped into Norway by parachute during the winter and that "there's an army of ghosts now in Norway which may one day suddenly grow up like mushrooms."

"They are living in secret places awaiting action," the dispatch said.

Nazi occupation officials recently intensified the search for the foreign agents after discovery that 8,000 pistols, 12,000 guns and 320 machine guns had disappeared, it said, and also that 17,000 Norwegians were missing from the country. They were believed to have fled into Sweden.

Nauru Island

Japanese Base Is Bombed by U.S. Planes

WASHINGTON, March 27—(AP)—The United States navy announced today that heavy bombers striking far out from their base on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons have heavily damaged a Japanese base on Nauru island in the mandated area of the South Pacific just west of the Gilbert group.

Nauru is a coral island about 10 miles in circumference and supporting a heavy growth of cocoanut trees. It is only 32 miles south of the Equator and 675 nautical miles northeast of Guadalcanal air field. It is 1,020 nautical miles south of Truk, the main enemy base in the South Pacific.

OFFENSIVE POSSIBILITIES

This was the first time that Nauru had figured in American operations against Japanese dominated areas of the South Pacific. The raid was regarded here as emphasizing the offensive possibilities of the American air field on Guadalcanal and stressing the menace to the Japanese positions of long range bombers operating from that field.

The communique also reported bomber and fighter attacks on Japanese-held Kiska in the Aleutians. Japanese personnel at one camp was strafed by low-flying fighters and bombs were dropped on runways, the hangar and the camp area generally.

Conditional Sale Privilege Revoked By Prices Board

OTTAWA, March 27.—(CP)—The Prices Board announced last night that merchants no longer may require their customers to buy $1 worth of goods to purchase a particular commodity which is in short supply. The board said it had withdrawn permission to make such conditional sales on the grounds that the permission had been abused. The board no longer approves conditional sales of any kind.

Example of Unity

Eden Cites British Empire As Model for World Study In Shaping Post-War Plans

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 27—(CP)—The British Commonwealth of Nations stands as a model of co-operation and unity that the world might study with advantage when searching for a post-war charter of "man's freedom and self-government under the rule of law," Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, said here last night.

Speaking to a joint session of the general assembly of the state of Maryland, of which one of his ancestors, Sir Robert Eden, was the last of the line of British governors, he said his conferences and discussions with American leaders in Washington are certain to bear fruit in the future. He repeated his earlier warning that "we have yet far to travel before the final triumph over our enemies in the west and in the east."

To the assembled legislators of Maryland, Eden renewed Britain's pledge to accept a full share of the war against Japan, after the defeat of Germany and Italy; besought China not to "misdoubt us" on Britain's determination to assist in the reopening of the Burma road supply line and made it plain "that we have no secret engagements with any country, nor do we seek as a result of this conflict to extend our boundaries or increase our possessions."

FIRST PUBLIC SPEECH

It was Eden's first public speech since his arrival in the United States nearly two weeks ago for exploratory discussions on military and political questions with President Roosevelt, Secretary of State

Swing to Attack

Soviets Score New Advances On Two Fronts

By HENRY SHAPIRO
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

MOSCOW, March 27—Russian troops, swinging over to the attack, broke into German trenches in the Belgorod area today, killed 200 of the enemy in hand-to-hand fighting and captured the positions.

The Soviet mid-day communique also reported new Russian gains south of Lake Ilmen on the northwestern front, and in the Northwest Caucasus, but said Red armies on the central front had paused to consolidate their positions deep in the outer defenses of Smolensk before lunging forward in a new attack.

(A Stockholm report published in London said Russian tanks had broken into Doroboguzh, German stronghold 50 miles east-northeast of Smolensk.)

GERMAN CLAIM

(The Rome radio quoted a German propaganda ministry spokesman as announcing that the Russians lost 1,500,000 men killed, 12,000 tanks destroyed or disabled and 3,763 planes shot down during their winter offensives between No. 20 and March 20.)

The Friday midnight communique said Russian forces captured two enemy strongholds and several hamlets on the Smolensk front, but field dispatches acknowledged that stiffening German resistance and counter-attacks, as well as spring floods, were slowing the pace of the advance toward the great central front bastion. Many rivers were said to be already clear of ice.

The area north of Chuguev, 22 miles southeast of Kharkov remained the principal battle zone in the Ukraine with the Russians repulsing countless tank and infantry attacks.

In House of Commons Speech

McGeer Urges Use of National Currency and Credit to Assure Canada's Maximum Progress

G. G. McGeer, K.C., Liberal (Vancouver, Burrard) speaking in the budget debate in the House of Commons Thursday, was acclaimed by members on all sides of the house for what they described as the most eloquent and outstanding speech delivered during the present session. Speaking with quiet emphasis and dignity, Mr. McGeer reminded Canada that she, as yet, had not even approached the war sacrifice of other Allied nations, particularly Russia and China, and that the battle for world freedom would be won by her fighting men in tanks, planes and ships on all the far-flung fighting fronts. Due to the unusual acclaim given Mr. McGeer's speech and the general widespread interest evidenced, The Edmonton Bulletin is presenting the speech to its readers in full.—EDITOR.

OTTAWA—Mr. Speaker, we are now discussing the fourth budget of the war. This budget has some marks of great distinction as compared with former budgets in other times of war. If one were called upon to measure in a sentence the difference between the budgets in this time of war and the budgets from 1914-18, that is, the budgets for war under Liberal leadership and the budgets for war under Tory administration, one could find it in a difference in the rates of interest paid and in the methods now adopted in regard to finance.

Today we have no five and a half per cent tax-free war bonds; in contrast we have a ministry of finance that is raising an enormous loan at the rate of three quarters of one per cent. History is in the making in many ways, no less in the sphere of financial administration than otherwise.

I remember that during the dark days of the depression, when millions of jobs were crying to be done and millions of people remained in artificial idleness the governor of the Bank of England brushed aside the clamorous voice of monetary reform with the cryptic declaration: "The dogs bark but the caravan moves on."

Time, History Move On

Well Mr. Speaker, time and history move on but it is well to remember that it is in war time that the dealers in debt always reap their greatest harvest. It should never be forgotten that when the dogs of war break the leash to bedevil mankind, the hounds of usury run free. I remember my own puny effort to help improve the lot of Canadians during the years of the pathetic depression of the Bennett administration.

Mr. Hanson (York-Sudbury): When did it begin?

Mr. MacNicol: You should not say "of the Bennett depression." You should say, "all over the world."

Mr. McGeer: I once remarked to a leader of this opposition that he could not listen himself into trouble.

Mr. Hanson (York-Sudbury): But you can talk yourself into trouble.

Mr. McGeer: I am no more adept at that than the former leader of the Tory party. Today, however, I did not want to deal with the controversial issue of monetary reform so much as to draw attention to some of the things that are taking place in the history which the men and women of our day and generation are making.

In the toll of time we have witnessed recently the passing of a great American and a great Canadian. In the passing of Mr. J. P. Morgan and Sir Edward Beatty we see something of the passing of the

Nation-Wide Rush In U.S. For Meat

NEW YORK, March 27.—(CP)—Long lines of would-be meat shoppers formed in today's pre-dawn darkness in some United States cities to lead a nation-wide rush for the dwindling supplies remaining before rationing control is imposed Monday.

Early-morning rushes have been common occurrences in recent weeks, but none, perhaps, equalled the frenzy displayed in some Ohio cities today.

At Columbus, where customer lines began forming as early as 1:30 a.m., 18 policemen were sent to one market to control the crowd. In Cleveland an estimated 50,000 persons milled around three major markets, delaying street car traffic from 20 minutes to an hour, and bringing from Frank C. Jeroski, city commissioner of markets, the observation that "people have just gone crazy."

There, as elsewhere, many were disappointed. There simply wasn't enough meat to go around.

U.S., Canada Talk Labor Problems

OTTAWA, March 27. — (CP) — Wartime labor problems in which Canada and the United States have mutual interest are to be discussed at conferences which open today between Canadian and United States officials, Labor Minister Mitchell announced.

A delegation representing the war manpower committee at Washington arrived in Ottawa this morning to take part in the meetings. Topics of discussion include the possibility of exchange of farm labor at border points, joint recruitment of labor in cases where both countries are concerned, and general review of various plans both countries have in contemplation.

Giraud, Catroux Discuss Plans To Unite French

By DANIEL DE LUCE

ALGIERS, March 27.—(AP)—Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen. Georges Catroux, both seeking a formula for merger of the forces of Gen. Charles de Gaulle with the North African French in a common front against the Axis, conferred this morning and then lunched together at the government mansion.

Catroux's liaison staff here declined comment on progress of the negotiations, which are concerned with practical means for uniting French efforts and finding suitable posts for various high personalities.

NOGUES TO LOSE OUT

The ouster of Gen. Auguste Nogues, commander of French Morocco, and Pierre Boisson, governor-general of French West Africa, who also serves on Giraud's war council, was believed to be among the basic requirements put forward by the Fighting French for an understanding. Nogues, at least, was considered certain to lose out, French political circles said.

Enmity between Boisson and de Gaulle, growing out of the latter's unsuccessful attempt to take Dakar by force, was believed sufficient to necessitate Boisson's replacement or transfer.

(In London last night de Gaulle said in a French broadcast over the BBC that he soon will go to North Africa to see Giraud, "a great soldier and a noble figure." He pledged that their meeting would ensure a fighting union of all French forces.)

B.C. Beer Quota Drastically Cut

VICTORIA, March 27. — (CP) — British Columbia liquor permit holders will be restricted to one dozen pints of beer a month starting Monday and no purchases of spirits or wine will be allowed in April unless none was bought in March, Liquor Commissioner W. F. Kennedy announced last night. He also said new quotas will be announced May 1.

In announcing the restrictions, Mr. Kennedy said that unless the Dominion government rations supplies as requested by Mr. Kennedy British Columbia will launch a rationing system of its own allowing each permit holder one pint of spirits and one dozen pints of beer a month with the wine quota to be decided later.

The present quotas in British Columbia are two dozen pints of beer a week and 40 ounces of spirits and one gallon of wine a month with the proviso that only one purchase of spirits and wine could be made each month. Customers have been taking 13 ounce bottles of spirits when larger ones were not available.

Beer parlors are not affected by the new regulations, since they are operating on quotas based on the monthly consumption of each establishment last year. Since beer restriction were first put into effect

Canucks Destroy 500th Nazi Plane In Single Sector

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, March 27. — (CP) — Canadian Spitfire pilots gained the distinction of shooting down the German aircraft which boosted the total score of their sector since the start of the war to more than 500 enemy destroyed.

During a sweep over France in a squadron led by Sqdn. Ldr. F. H. Boulton of Coleman, Alta., Flt. Lt. R. A. Buckham of Vancouver, destroyed a Focke Wulfe 190, bringing the total to within half a confirmed victory of the 500 mark.

Then FO. L. M. Cameron of Roland, Man., and two other fliers each knocked down a plane on the same day.

Congratulated

G. G. McGeer, K.C., Liberal member of parliament for Vancouver Burrard, who won the acclaim of members on all sides of the House of Commons Thursday, for what was hailed as the most outstanding speech of the present session.

War News Summary

SATURDAY, MARCH 27

Tunisia: Allied headquarters announced today that Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's British 8th Army delivered a successful attack on the Mareth line in Tunisia yesterday and said operations were "proceeding according to plan in spite of stiff resistance."

The announcement came shortly after an Algiers broadcast—apparently referring to mid-week developments—said the 8th Army had evacuated its bridgehead in the Wadi Zigzaou at the north end of the "Little Maginot" fortifications.

Axis broadcasts declared that U.S. troops were making progress in both regions in their synchronized drives toward the sea.

Air War: R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. bombers heavily attacked the big rail hub at Duisburg last night. It was announced that no German planes had been over Great Britain for 36 hours.

• • •

Russia: Soviet dispatches declared today that Red Army troops, seizing the initiative in the fierce battle around Belgorod, stormed into German trenches during the night and routed the Nazis in hand-to-hand fighting.

Field reports said the Germans were making a gigantic effort to score a major break-through southeast of Kharkov.

On the central (Moscow) front, the Soviet command said Russian troops smashed deeper into the German defence zone on the outer approaches to Smolensk, attacking from three directions.

U.S. Airline Plans Service to Alaska

ST. PAUL, March 27. — (AP) — Croil Hunter, president of Northwest Airlines, announced yesterday that initial steps have been taken to establish an all-American commercial air route from Seattle, Wash., to Alaska and thence to the Orient.

The proposed route would be an extension of the present Northwest system between Chicago, the twin cities and Seattle. It would run from Seattle to Anchorage and Nome, Alaska and then to Manila, Peiping, Shanghai and Chungking, ending in Calcutta, India.

Concurrently, the airline also is amending an existing application for a Washington-twin cities-Fairbanks, Alaska route to extend it to Nome. It also proposes an alternate route on the twin cities-Fairbanks leg via McMurray and Norman wells, Y.T., and Fort Yukon, Alaska, which would be fuel stops.

Japs' Resistance Strong in Burma

By FRANK L. MARTIN

NEW DELHI, March 27—(AP)—R.A.F. bombers struck twice yesterday at the railway station and other objectives of Monywa, 60 miles west of Mandalay, in the course of wide-ranging attacks in central and southern Burma and on the Mayu Peninsula, an Allied communique said today.

As the air struggle in the Mayu district continued, official quarters revealed details of the stiff resistance of Japanese ground forces in that area which has bogged down successive British attacks for more than two months.

Two Japanese key positions have withstood three major assaults, three artillery barrages and an attempt to tunnel under them which was blocked by solid underlying rock.

Eden Declares British Unity Is Worth Study

Cordell Hull and other American leaders. He will not speak in public again until he appears before a joint session of the House of Commons and senate in Ottawa next week.

It was an historic occasion for the tall immaculately dressed foreign secretary because, as he told the general assembly, he has been "steeped in the atmosphere of Maryland" since early childhood. Another of his ancestors, Lord Baltimore, was responsible for the enactment of a law in 1649 by which freedom of religion was guaranteed in Maryland, leading to the early influx of settlers in what was then a British colony along the Atlantic coast.

Speaking of his conferences with Hull, Eden said "we have done much together, and we are both well pleased at the result. For myself, I can only say this: In my life it has fallen to my lot on many occasions to visit foreign capitals, and I am sure that never in my experience has a journey been more worthwhile.

SENSATIONALISM OUT

"You will not expect, I trust, sudden and sensational developments. For there will be none. But there has been a meeting of minds between us about the present and the future that will, we are sure, bear fruit."

Turning to a discussion of postwar planning and the maintenance of peace, Eden said the lesson of the years between 1919 and 1939 was that "the intentions of the peace-loving nations were excellent, but their practice was weak." He went on:

"If there is one lesson we should have learned from the distress of those years, it is surely this: That we cannot shut our windows and draw our curtains, and be careless of what is happening next door or on the other side of the street. No nation can close its frontiers and hope to live secure. We cannot have prosperity in one country and misery in its neighbor, peace in one hemisphere and war in the other. And if we try to have these things, we shall be back on the old road to world war.

"We shall never find security or progress within heavily defended national fortresses. We shall only find them by the greatest possible measure of co-operation. The United Nations, and in particular the United States, the British Commonwealth, China and the Soviet Union, must act together in war and in peace.

GREATEST OF AIMS

"The greatest of all peace aims is to ensure that never again shall unscrupulous leaders be able to carry their peoples into war and bring tragedy on the world. We shall accordingly take steps for the physical prevention of this danger by the enforced disarmament of these gangster nations. We must ensure that this protection of peace-loving peoples is maintained in full effectiveness for whatever period may be necessary. We must therefore be ready to protect and maintain whatever settlement we devise.

"And one thing, I am sure, is, above all, necessary. Never again must the civilized world be ready to tolerate unilateral infraction of treaties. For that would be to sap the whole foundation of the secure international life which it is our principal purpose to restore.

"We must prosecute the war to a final victory. We must determine together to take steps to ensure that neither Germany, nor Italy nor Japan can commit a like aggression again. We can do this and we will. If we do, we will fulfill the first condition of peace."

At another point Eden said the lack of power behind the international system led to the triumph of dictators after the last war.

BACKED BY STRENGTH

"Any new international authority that we may agree to set up," he continued, "can only succeed if it is backed by sufficient strength. It will not be enough for one country, or even two, to display the qualities necessary to protect the peace. The work will take all that America and Britain, Russia and China, and the United Nations can offer."

The foreign secretary seemed to go out of his way to placate China, no doubt to reassure the Chinese who were quick to spot the omission of their country in Prime Minister Churchill's speech last Sunday when he was enumerating the leading powers among the United Nations. It may have been unintentional on the prime minister's part but Chinese sources here noted and commented on his references to the United States, Britain and Russia and his omission of China.

Last night, however, the foreign secretary said:

"Let China not misdoubt us. We shall not forget how for years she resisted aggression single handed. Never has there been a thought of parley and China no longer stands alone.

TO OPEN BURMA ROAD

"The day will come when the Burma Road will once again be open. It will carry to China an ever-increasing volume of supply, which the efforts of your country and mine are turning out daily from the assembly lines."

It was when he was referring to the need of co-operation in post-war reconstruction and security that Eden spoke of the constitutional setup of the British Commonwealth.

"We in the British Commonwealth," he said, "have grown up in the thought of co-operation. Some parts of the commonwealth—the self-governing dominions—enjoy complete independence, while others are moving toward this goal. Our enemies have looked to this war, as they looked to the last war, to sound the death knell of this great association. Nothing in the world is more unlikely.

"The commonwealth is a voluntary union. Its bonds are the will of peoples and races with a common past and a common purpose to travel the same way. Theirs is no static society, shrinking from change or fearful of the future. On the contrary, the British Commonwealth is capable of continuing development.

"We have sought to learn by our mistakes. The British Empire is the first in history to evolve the idea of self-governing dominions. That is an entirely new conception in the world. We believe that it can help us to reach our common aim, man's freedom and self-government under the rule of law.

It is in this spirit that we shall administer our trust for the peoples in our empire, whom it is our duty and our pledge to lead to full membership of our community of nations.

"I maintain that these principles of our commonwealth are not of limited application. They are inseparable from the kind of world for which we are fighting, the kind of world we hope to see. That hope today is gathering strength in North Africa, the Pacific, China, through enslaved Europe and on the wide plains of Russia."

Ilsley Urged to Investigate All Reports of Extravagance As House Votes $688,647,000

By C. R. BLACKBURN

OTTAWA, March 27.—(CP)—House of Commons approval was given yesterday to two interim supply bills authorizing Finance Minister Ilsley to spend $688,647,000 of the total war and non-war appropriations remaining to be voted for the next fiscal year.

The two bills, each asking for one-sixth of the original estimates for war and non-war costs, were put through all stages in a three-hour debate during which the minister was urged by the opposition to investigate all reports of extravagance and to assure the people this was being done.

Senate approval of the bills will be sought when that body meets next week and their final adoption will provide the minister with funds for the first two months of the fiscal year starting April 1.

Discussion of the details of both sets of expenditures will take place when the resolutions based on the total amounts for the year are before the house.

Mr. Ilsley said total non-war expenditures for the next fiscal year would be $610,880,000, while the main resolution for next year's war appropriation is for $3,890,000,000.

However, all but about $240,000,000 of the non-war estimates are provided for by statute and do not have to be voted in detail, hence the non-war interim supply bill asking for one-sixth amounted only to $40,314,000.

Said "Harmonious"

Five Ministers Dismissed In Vichy Cabinet Shakeup

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—The Berlin radio announced last night a shakeup in Pierre Laval's Vichy cabinet in which five ministers were dismissed, and this development came amid continued desertions from the Vichy government by foreign diplomats who were switching their allegiance to Gen. Henri Giraud, French high commissioner in Allied Northwest Africa.

The ministers "taking leave of Chief of State Petain," said the broadcast recorded in New York by the Associated Press were:

Joseph Barthelmy, justice; Admiral Jean Marie Abrial, navy; Gen. Jean Francois Janneky, aviation; Jules Brevie, colonies; and Rear Admiral Rene Platon, secretary of state in the foreign ministry held by Laval himself.

CONCENTRATE POWER

The Berlin radio stressed that the shakeup was "harmonious, insuring unconditional support of the Laval government," and said some of the posts were being telescoped to give a greater concentration of power.

Actually most of the French ministries are obsolete because of war developments. France has lost nearly all her colonies to either Gen. Giraud or Gen. Charles de Gaulle, fighting French leader and the Germans demobilized all the French military services when they occupied all of France last fall following the Allied invasion of North Africa.

WINNIPEG, March 27. — (CP) — Brewery officials here said cash and carry stores were closed here yesterday, and household deliveries to permit holders suspended until April 1, because quotas for March have been exhausted.

TORONTO, March 26.—(CP)—Purchases of wine and imported beer as from April 1, must be made by permit, the liquor control board of Ontario announced today.

Previously, permits were required only for purchase of spiritous liquors.

A liquor board statement also said that "a most detailed study is being made with respect to the domestic beer situation."

New permits at a previously-announced price of $1, will go on sale Monday, the board statement said, along with non-resident temporary permits which will be valid for a period not exceeding one month from their date of issue.

QUANTITY LIMITS

Also announced were the following quantity limitations per calendar month:

Spirits—Five 26⅔ ounce bottles or their equivalent, purchaseable at one time.

Canadian wine—Eight 40-ounce bottles or their equivalent. However, not more than two 40-ounce bottles may be purchased per calendar week.

Imported beer—12 24-ounce bottles or their equivalent, with weekly purchases confined to not more than six 24-ounce bottles or their equivalent.

Spirits, wine and beer may be purchased at one time but only in accordance with quantity limitations.

Sir E. Beatty Buried in East

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 27.—(CP)—Sir Edward Beatty, former chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was buried today in the family burial plot in a cemetery between St. Catharines and Thorold, the town in which he was born 65 years ago.

Sir Edward's body arrived here this morning from Montreal in a crepe-draped railway car named Thorold for interment, the committal service being conducted by Rev. H. M. Coulter of Knox Presbyterian church. At the graveside Pipe Major S. H. Featherstone of the Argyle and Sutherland Highlanders played the lament.

Relatives and leaders of Canadian business life accompanied the body on its last journey from Montreal on a special train.

Among them were: Miss Mary Beatty and Dr. Henry Beatty, sister and brother of the late Sir Edward; D. C. Coleman, president of the C.P.R.; Ross H. McMaster, Morris W. Wilson, J. W. Hobbs, Hon. C. A. Dunning, L. J. Belnap, G. Blair Gordon and Aime Geoffrion, C.P.R. directors; Dr. Cyril James, principal of McGill University; F. Bramley, secretary of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company.

House Gives Twelve Bills Third Reading

Third reading was given by the legislature to twelve bills at Friday's sitting, and 16 others were discussed by the committee of the whole house, and were reported to Mr. Speaker for third reading.

Two bills were introduced into the legislature at the sitting, one by Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., minister of municipal affairs, and the other by Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer.

ASSIST DEBTORS

Mr. Maynard's bill makes provision for a debtors' assistance board, which would advise and assist debtors in adjusting the settlement of their debts with creditors. The board will arrange meetings between creditors and debtors, and will advise and assist debtors in preparing any plan or scheme of settlement before any dominion board or court which may be set up for adjustment and settlement of debts.

Power would be given to the board to make inquiries regarding the property of debtors, and to examine the debtor or others with who appear to have knowledge of the debtor's affairs. These examinations would be made under oath.

Mr. Low's bill is an Act to Amend the Treasury Department Act. It enables the lieutenant-governor-in-council to appoint a provincial auditor at a salary not exceeding $6,500 per year. The present Act makes the $6,500 sum mandatory, and it is desired to allow the lieutenant-governor-in-council to appoint a new auditor at a lesser salary.

BILLS PASSED

Bills given third reading were: An act to Amend the Public Service Efficiency Act; an act to Amend the Alberta Hail Insurance Act; an act to Amend the Billiard Room Act; an act to Amend the Industrial Wages Security Act; an act to Amend the Alberta Insurance Act; an act to Amend the Water Resources Act; an act to Validate an Order-in-Council providing in a certain area of the province Pacific Daylight Saving Time instead of Mountain Daylight Saving Time be Used; an act to Amend the Government Liquor Control Act of Alberta; an act to Amend the Old Age Pensions (Supplementary Allowances) Act; an act respecting Poisons; an act to Amend the Telephone and Telegraph Act; and an act to Amend the District Courts Act.

Nazis Pay "Bounty" On Illegal Births

LONDON, March 27. — (CP) — The German authorities are attempting to induce Dutch women to bear illegitimate children by German soldiers Aneta news agency reported yesterday. Details of a decree providing payments to such women "if such help serves to aid preservation and protection of the racially-valuable Germanic inheritance," were published in the National Socialist newspaper Het Nationale Dagblad.

Many Auxiliary Plane Carriers Now in Service

WASHINGTON, March 27. —(AP) — The United States Navy disclosed yesterday that the first of a fleet of auxiliary aircraft carriers are in combat areas and scores of others are building in shipyards on both the Atlantic and Pacific coast.

The primary function of the auxiliary carriers at this time is to help smash the German U-boat offensive in the Atlantic, but they are by no means limited to furnishing convoy protection, having uses also as ferrying craft and in fleet operations.

USED IN ATLANTIC

The greatest need for them now, however, is in the North Atlantic and indications were that that is where the bulk of the force will be disposed.

The report on the new program was made public at a press conference by Secretary of Navy Frank Knox.

Converted from merchant-type vessels or built keel-up as auxiliaries, these carriers have a force of aircraft adequate to patrol vast reaches of the ocean in convoy duty and, the Navy Secretary said, provide a "triple menace" to the enemy's undersea, surface and air raiders.

ANOTHER CUP OF TEA

"Mrs. Picobac," said her lord and master, "I'll have another piece of your excellent apple pie and another cup of tea."

"You are welcome to another piece of pie," smiled Mrs. Picobac. "But I'm afraid I cannot give you another good cup of tea. Tea ration won't permit. It will have to be half water."

"No complaints," laughed Mr. Picobac. "I can always lay the foundation for a mild . . . cool . . . smoke whatever you give me. That's one blessing Hitler can't take away from us. A pipe of Picobac is a promise of peace!"

The Sage of Essex Centre proceeded to complete his "foundation" for a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke by absorbing a second piece of Mrs. Picobac's apple pie.

Vancouver M.P. Urges Greater War Sacrifice, Solid Social Structure

golden age of laissez-faire, the golden age which reared a rugged individualism, which in turn laid the great foundation upon which our modern commerce and industry are founded. It was my privilege to contest with the Canadian Pacific Railway, during the presidency of Sir Edward Beatty, the issue of the mountain differential in British Columbia.

GOOD FEE—GOOD SERVICE

Mr. McGeer: At a very good fee for very good service rendered. In fact it came to be known as the case in which the faith to move mountains was required. Well we did not move the mountains, but we did remove the mountain differential on grain and made Vancouver the greatest grain port in the Dominion of Canada. It was my privilege to come to know Sir Edward Beatty during that period of time; and later as mayor of the city of Vancouver I had the privilege of conferring upon him the freedom of that city.

I found him to be a great Canadian and a great leader, one who commanded the respect of all Canadians, who was revered and loved by every member of the great staff that maintained the Canadian Pacific Railway, from the humblest apprentice and office boy to the highest executive. His passing marks the passing of a great era of constructive enterprise in Canada.

As we mourn the loss of Sir Edward Beatty we are all grateful for the fact that the war leader of the British Empire has been restored to health and is again fulfilling the greatest chapter in his amazing career. I think everyone who has read Churchill's magnificent record of the life of the Duke of Marlborough cannot help but realize the profound influence which that remarkable contribution to British Empire history has had upon the statecraft and success of Winston Churchill. In appreciating the life work of the Duke of Marlborough, Churchill has said:

SURE FOUNDATIONS

"Marlborough's victorious sword established upon sure foundations the constitutional and parliamentary structure of our country almost as it has come down to us today. He carried all that was best in the life work of Oliver Cromwell and William III to an abiding conclusion.

". . . He animated the war at sea no less than on land and established till the present time the British naval supremacy in the Mediterranean. His eye ranged far across the oceans, and the foundations of British dominions were launched or strengthened as the result of his continental policy. He was for six years the commander in chief of the allies, but though subject, the virtual master of England, he was head of the most glorious administration in her history.

Churchill in reality is reliving the life of his illustrious predecessor, he is a master scholar in the most difficult art of history and I was particularly impressed by his expression in regard to history's interpretation. He says: "All men and events are moving forward together in a throng. Each individual decision is the result of all the forces at work at any given moment; and the passage of even a few years enables, nay compels, men and peoples to think, feel and act quite differently without any insincerity or baseness."

COMFORT FOR TORIES

No doubt my friends in the Progressive Conservative party will get a little comfort out of that. He goes on to say: "In understanding history, if readers will look back over the last three or four years of their own lives, or that of their country, and pass in detailed review events as they occurred and successive opinions they have formed upon them they will appreciate the pervading mutability of all human affairs.

Combinations long abhorred became the order of the day. Ideas last year deemed inadmissable from the pavement of daily routine. Political antagonists make common cause, and abandoning old friends, find new . . . the popularity of governments depart as the too bright hopes on which it was founded fade into normal and general disappointments. But all this seems natural to those who live through a period of change."

Churchill, born a blue-blooded Tory serving the demands of progress left the Tory party and became the great crusading knight of British Liberalism in that great era of reform at the beginning of this century, when old-age pensions, anti-sweat laws, the rights of trade union organizations, unemployment insurance and the right of parliament to be free from interference in fiscal matters from the House of Lords, were burning issues, Churchill became the reincarnation of St. George, and the House of Lords was the dragon of reactionism sustaining the unrighteousness of privileged monopoly.

THEN IRON MOULDER

In those days I was serving my time as an iron moulder and vitally interested in the Labor leadership and the influence of great men like Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor. But we young men of Canada looked to Churchill as much as to our Labor leader for the reforms that we hoped would come. We looked forward to the reading of his speeches with hopeful confidence. Let me quote from one of them, typical of his attack upon the Tory government of England in that day:

"We want a government that will think a little more about the toilers at the bottom of the mines, and a little less about the fluctuations of share market in London. We want a government which instead of looking mainly abroad will look mainly if not, I think, entirely at home.

"We want a government and policy which will think the condition of a slum in an English city is not less worthy of the attention of statesmen and of parliament than the jungle of Somaliland. We know very well what to expect from a great leader of a protectionist party—a party of great vested interests; corruption at home, aggression to cover it up abroad, the trickery of tariff juggles, and tyranny of a party machine, sentiment by the bucketful, patriotism by the imperial pint, the open hand at the public exchequer, the open door at the public house, dear food for the millions, cheap labor for the millionaire.'

CHURCHILL LAID FOUNDATION

That was the Churchill who laid the foundation for the faith and confidence that the working masses have placed in him in this hour of England's crisis. It was during that period that his influence was brought to the Dominion of Canada, and it was then that Sir Wilfred Laurier established the first department of labor, and called upon a young Canadian to be the first officer to preside over that department, who afterward became the Prime Minister of the Dominion of Canada, enjoying the greatest measure of confidece that has ever been extended to any Prime Minister in the history of our nation's political life. Not only that, but he became — and to some degree through the medium of his own statesmanship — the leader of a united Dominion of Canada which, as Churchill has declared, became in the world's greatest crisis the linchpin between the British Empire and the United States of America.

Thus in the golden threads of history we find the public service of Churchill, the war leader of the Empire, and Mackenzie King, the war leader of Canada, linked together, just as we find the history of our own Dominion inseparably blended with that of the Empire.

Just as the history of the House of Marlborough and the British Empire was the inspiration to Churchill, the history of our young Dominion offers to us the inspiration of our Canadian future today.

As I look back upon our history and think of what the Fathers of Confederation labored to found, I remember with regard and respect some of the expressions they coined in those days not so far away. Back in 1824 William Lyon Mackenzie, writing to Canning, said this:

REQUIRE FEW BOONS

"A union of all the colonies, with a government suitably poised and modelled, so as to have under its eye the resources of our whole territory and having the means in its power to administer impartial justice in all its bounds, to no one part at the expense of another, would require few 'boons' from Britain, and would advance her interests much more in a few years than the bare rights of possession of a barren, uncultivated wilderness of lake and forest, with some three or four inhabitants to the square mile, can do in centuries."

That hope of "a self-governing Dominion empowered to administer impartial justice, in all its bounds," came as a right to Canadians, and it came from the British parliament. And the hope that it would prove a boon to Great Britain has been more than fulfilled.

Yes, there are other thoughts expressed by the men who laid the foundation for this Dominion. They were linked then, as is this great conflict of today, with the hope of freedom. George Etienne Cartier, speaking on confederation, declared:

APPRECIATE ADVANTAGES

"We cannot by law make the differences of race disappear, but I am convinced that the Anglo-Canadians and the French-Canadians will appreciate the advantages of their position, set side by side, like a great family, their contact will provide a happy spirit of emulation. The diversity of races will in spirit, believe me, contribute to the common prosperity.

The whole difficulty will be in the manner of rendering justice to minorities. In Upper Canada the Roman Catholics will be in the minority, in lower Canada it will be the Protestants who will be in the minority, whilst in the Maritime provinces the two communions will equalize each other.

Is it possible then to suppose that the general government of the provincial governments can become guilty of arbitrary acts? What would be the result, even supposing that one of the provincial governments should attempt it? Measures of such a character would undoubtedly be repudiated by the mass of the people. There is no reason then to fear that it will ever be sought to deprive a minority of its rights."

HOPE OF MACDONALD

Sir John A. Macdonald was inspired no less by the same hope of security for minorities, which he expressed in these words:

"So long, too, as we form a portion of the British Empire, we shall have the example of her free institutions, of the high standard of the character of her statesmen and public men, of the purity of her legislation, and the upright administration of her laws.

"We shall enjoy here that which is the great test of constitutional freedom—we shall have the rights of the minority respected.

"In all countries the rights of the majority take care of themselves, but it is only in countries like England, enjoying constitutional liberty are safe from the tyranny of a single despot of an unbridled democracy, that the rights of the minorities are regarded."

But it remained for a great Canadian, a man who had the universal love and respect of the Dominion, a French Canadian, a Roman Catholic, a man who was Prime Minister of this Dominion from 1896 to 1911, to declare the extent to which freedom in Canada has been sustained when he said:

"England has proved at all times that she can fight her own battles, but if the day were ever to come when England was in danger, let the bugle sound, let the fire be lit on the hills and in all parts of the colonies, though we might not be able to do much whatever we can do shall be done by the colonies to help her.

LEAD WORLD IN LIBERTY

The sun in his daily career does not shed its light upon any people on the face of the earth enjoying more liberty than my countrymen of French extraction. And my last words to the doubters, to the scoffers, is that freedom is worth fighting for and worth dying for."

We have not forgotten the dark days of 1940 when France was overwhelmed and when England beleagured stood behind the barricade of her ancient island home. It was then that Churchill came forward to declare and demonstrate that England in danger is always England at her best. He said:

"We shall fight on to the end. . . . we shall never surrender. And even if, which I do not for a moment believe this island or large part of it were subjugated and starving, then our Empire beyond the seas armed and guarded by the British fleet, will carry on its struggle until in God's good time the new world with all its power and might sets forth to the liberation and rescue of the old."

His faith has been vindicated. Today upon this continent we are realizing fruits of a great experiment. We have seen the reconciliation of two great races, each retaining its religion, laws, customs and institutions living together and building together in one great national home, but the experiment went further than that.

DOCTRINES OF TREATY

It carried on the doctrines of the Rush-Bagot treaty of 1818, under which the great lakes were disarmed and all the boundaries between the United States and the British colonies were freed from fortifications. Canada, with her French and English, as a sovereign nation is working out the fulfilment of a partnership with the United States which has brought about the development of the continent of North America to a point where today it is the hope of freedom throughout all the world.

Yes, that great work has fulfilled the fondest hopes of the Fathers of Confederation, and it offers to the whole world something of the kind of relations under whcih all men in all places and at all times can live and dwell together in peace.

In this war, testing whether or not governments established on the principle of human freedom can be maintained against the effort to establish world domination upon the exclusive foundation of human bondage, Canada is playing a part which should lift Canadians above the petty bickerings and conflicts of party politics and up to the level of service and sacrifice which is being displayed upon every battle front. There is no front today on which Canadians are not to be found and on which the product of Canadian war industry is not making its contribution.

Today we have the Atlantic Charter with its new ideas expressed in the terms of the four great freedoms—freedom of religion, freedom of expression, freedom from fear, and freedom from want. I think we should add another one, freedom from the slavery of involuntary debt.

For a brief moment I should like to touch upon the history of Canada in the realm of constructive finance. I have studied the life of Abraham Lincoln. I feel that in his executive administration of the United States he founded some new concepts of political economy. When Lincoln came to the presidency of the United States that nation was carrying the debt load of the Mexican war. Many there were at that time who declared that because of financial weakness and incapacity the federal government lacked the strength to subdue a revolution of the proportions which brought on the Civil War.

STUDENT OF FINANCE

But Lincoln had been a student of finance. He had married into the banking circles of Kentucky when he married Mary Todd. He was a representative of the bankers for six years on the floor of the legislature of the State of Illinois and he came to the White House equipped with a knowledge and understanding of the techniques of private bankers and finance, greatly superior to that of many members of this house today.

He tried some seven different forms of currency—at that time there were seven thousand banks in the United States—and finally he exercised the power given him under the constitution of the United States to issue paper currency as the money of the nation. There was issued $450,000,000 of that currency which was practically twice the total volume of the currency in issue at the commencement of the Civil War.

With national currency he found no difficulty in financing the successful prosecution of the greatest war that had been fought in history up to that time. Believing that one could follow with safety a statesman with the profound understanding and recognized genius that Lincoln possessed, I made bold to work out a program which I published in 1935. May I take a moment to read just a page, as follows:

"Lincoln fully appreciated that his national currency system would not and could not of itself create or maintain stable prosperity. He recognized, however, that the establishment of a national currency system was the first step in any scheme designed to stabilize progress, and to rationalize prosperity.

LEARN BY EXPERIENCE

Experience since Lincoln's time has taught us that in addition to the mint there are at least four administrative institutions that must be set up before progress financed with national currency and public credit monetized in a national banking system can be maintained with any substantial degree of economic and social security. These institutions constitute the basis of the five-point plan that is essential to the re-establishment of normal prosperity. The fundamental institutions making up this five-point plan consist of:

1—The mint.

2—A national banking system.

3—An effective plan of scientific taxation.

4—A department of economic regulation and control.

5—A department of international trade and credit control."

Let me now summarize broadly the functions of these proposed governmental innovations, commencing with the mint:

1—The mint should mint, print and issue all metal and paper currency. The time has gone by when a private corporation should print the bills for the Bank of Canada.

2—National banking.

The national banking system should be empowered—

(a) To manage the gold and silver reserves of the nation; to control the minting, printing and issuing of all currency, including metal coins, paper bills, and bank credits which, when transferred by cheque, serve as a substitute for currency.

ISSUE ALL CURRENCY

(b) To issue all the currency and credit requirements of the privately-owned and operated merchant or commercial banking system and to supervise and regulate the operation of all merchant and commercial banks.

(c) To regulate and control all long-term capital investment, including investments such as advances for farm and home investments; all long-term industrial investments required for the expansion and development of international trade.

(d) To regulate and control the nation's international buying power and all international currency and credit transactions.

(e) To finance national, state, provincial and municipal government.

I then declared reasons why I shall vote against the amendment calling upon this house to nationalize the merchant banking system. Then I gave the same reasons I now hold, when I wrote:

"These proposals recognize that the creation and original issue of currency and credit as the spending power of government, the regulation of circulation and the management of international exchange and credit are public functions that should be performed by deparments of the national government. They also recognize that commercial or merchant banking is essentially a private enterprise that should be carried on by individuals operating in a private capacity but under proper government regulation and control.

There is no need for the nationalization of the merchant or commercial banking system, nor should there be any attempt made to socialize private finance."

Mark what has happened since that was written. Today we own the Bank of Canada, and I am proud of the part that I had in making that institution the property of the people of the Dominion of Canada.

HAS OWN PORTFOLIOS

Today it has in its portfolios one billion dollars of Dominion Government and provincial government securities. Today it has on issue almost one billion dollars of Canadian paper currency—national currency issued by an institution owned by the people of Canada and in service in this war.

Of course the Tories said to me in those days. That kind of thing is heresy. The former leader of the opposition, the member for York-Sudbury, was chairman of the banking and commerce committee the day I appeared before that body in 1934, and he remembers the attitude that was taken.

I then declared that we were in a war with poverty and that we should exercise the same powers to restore proper working conditions in Canada that we would be compelled to exercise were we threatened with aggression from abroad. I then declared to those who were claiming that we could not finance by government spending to prosperity that we could not lift ourselves by own boot-straps, that all my ideas were the visionary things and the concepts of crackpots and funny money people, men who did not understand the fundamental bases of the higher realms of political economy.

I then declared that if war ever came we should find no difficulty in financing the cost no matter how great it would be. Now the great lesson that we have learned in this war is the lesson that all the poverty and all the tragedy of unemployment and all the demoralization of the dole came because we had followed the advice of leaders who were surrounded by advisers who did not know what they were talking about.

ONLY TWO EXPLANATIONS

Let me say, Mr. Speaker, that in the course of my legal career I have examined a great many experts in many fields of activity, and I have always found that when your expert opinion does not conform to plain reason and common sense you can be sure of one of two things: either your expert does not know what he is talking about or he is deliberately fooling you.

I propose to offer to this parliament for its consideration in the way of recommendations to the government when we consider the budget resolutions, suggestions by which I believe we can greatly improve the war strength of the Dominion of Canada, some suggestions which if followed out and developed will give us a much greater power to meet with success the problems of reconstruction that are before us.

Let me suggest this to members of this parliament who carry responsibility today not only for financing this war but for carrying it through to a successful conclusion, and who have some responsibility to wage it in such a way that in the post-war period we shall emerge equipped to make this Canada of ours worthy of the men who have given so much, and who are giving more in this war than men have ever given in any other war that has ever been fought.

ESTABISH SECURITY

We may secure, Mr. Speaker, all that is indicated by the Beveridge plan, and indicated in much wider degree in the plan proposed by the National Resources Planning Board of United States, indicated by our own minister of pensions and national health (Mr. Mackenzie), who is directing Canada's program of rehabilitation, in great measure with the employment power of national currency.

Such plans can be carried out with success if financed with national currency. But we cannot even approach them or carry them out with anything but disaster if we persists in depending only upon our power to issue unpayable national debt.

In conclusion I just want to say this. Let no one feel that we in Canada have as yet been called upon to make in this war any serious measure of sacrifice. If we will only appreciate the suffering and the sacrifices of the people of China and compare our position with theirs, if we will go through Stalingrad and Leningrad and into the area which was the home of more than fifty million Russian people, if we will go into any part of the devastated areas in Europe we cannot help but come to a realization that the full extent of our power of service is as yet far from reached.

WON BY WARRIORS

Yes, and let no one come to the conclusion that this war is being won in the factories of Canada. It is being won, as every war is won, by the men who are crusading in the air, the men who are fighting on the seas, the tank men and the artillery men and the infantrymen who are fighting on the land.

Let us measure our efforts in the light of known sacrifices; and so guided, we may in parliament prove worthy of the sacrifices and devotion to duty that are expressed in every field of action by our armed services. Then and then only we can look forward to having the men who are fighting and winning the war return with some little appreciation of our efforts.

Development Northern Tar Sands Urged

OTTAWA, March 27.—(CP)—Increased expenditures on exploration of natural resources particularly Canadian oil fields, was urged yesterday by C.C.F. Leader Coldwell in the Commons. Such expenditures might open new sources of revenue and eventually proe to be economies, he said.

Mr. Coldwell quoted from an address of Wallace E. Pratt, executive director of Standard Oil of New Jersey, who estimated the volume of the Athabaska tar sands at 100,000,000,000 to 250,000,000,000 barrels compared with a total of all other discoveries of less than $1,000,000,000 barrels.

"There is little doubt that as a source of oil they could be exploited commercially today, eventually they may well come to be looked upon as one of the most important energy resources of north America," Mr. Pratt had said.

John R. MacNicol (Prog. Con., Toronto-Davenport), in an address before an Ottawa service club yesterday, also discussed Canada's oil resources and quoted Dr. S. C. Ells of the Mines department as saying that the tar sands of northern Alberta contained more than 100,000,000,000 barrels of oils.

A Letter from Home!

Here is a sure sign of approaching spring. In the above picture a squad of new recruits from No. 13 District Depot, Edmonton Wing, are seen out on Portage Avenue (Kingsway), going through a period of platoon drill. Sgt. H. Kroeker, of Ponoka, is the instructor on the right, while Cpl. G. A. Gwilliams, of Sioux Lookout, Ont., is leading the squad.

Regulations forbid individuals sending newspapers overseas. The Edmonton Bulletin prints the news of the week in letter form. This letter covers the period from March 22 to March 27. Clip it out and send it to your loved ones and friends.

Dear

Signs of spring abound at last after one of the toughest winters this part of Alberta has had in many years. The annual meeting of the Edmonton Baseball League has been set for April 5, just a week from Monday, and recruits of No. 13 District Depot, Edmonton Wing, are out on Portage avenue (Kingsway) going through platoon drill routine. Other signs: Huge throngs on Jasper and 101 street every evening; gophers seen at Winterburn; early robins in back yards; warning of the banning of heavy traffic on provincial highways due to the spring thaw.

Tuesday

Norman Shonert, 9603 105 street, motorman of a southbound street car, is in hospital with a bruised leg and a wrenched back, following collision of a tram operated by Shonert and a heavy Gainer's Ltd. truck at the intersection of 109 street and 97 avenue, at 3:20 p.m. yesterday. The front vestibule of the tram was completely demolished, and the truck also received extensive damage. The injured motorman told police the accident was caused by the failure of the tram wheels to grip the wet and icy rails.

Jasper Park Lodge, one of Canada's most popular summer tourist resorts, will not open this year, it has been announced by R. C. Vaughan, president of the C.N.R. The decision to keep Jasper and the two other C.N.R. resorts, Minaki Lodge and Pictou Lodge, closed, was made as a result of careful study of Canada's wartime economy, including manpower, foodstuffs and transportation.

Repeated complaints concerning refuse dumps had repercussions in city council Monday night when Ald. F. J. Mitchell intimated that "it was time that consideration was given by city commissioners to the installation of an incinerator system capable of destroying all city refuse." He sponsored a resolution asking commissioners to bring a report to council on the cost of such an installation, and on the steps that should be taken to remedy the situation under complaint while the plant was being built.

City council approved in principle the submission of the Edmonton Police Association that vacancies on the police force, excepting those created by enlistment in the armed services, be filled on a permanent basis provided applicants have the necessary qualifications. Commissioners were instructed to prepare the necessary by-law to implement council's resolution. Possibility that council may adopt a plan of tax consolidation for taxes in arrears prior to 1940 was seen in a motion endorsed by council and sponsored by Ald. A. Bisset.

Wednesday

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., general officer commanding-in-chief of the Pacific Command of the Canadian Army, addressed a luncheon meeting of Edmonton business leaders in the Macdonald hotel yesterday in connection with the current recruiting drive for the Reserve Army. Gen. Pearkes warned that Japanese war leaders were certainly aware that great amounts of material and large numbers of men are being concentrated in Alaska and the Canadian Northwest for the purpose of striking a destructive blow directly at Japan itself. As a result there exists a strong likelihood that the Japanese will strike desperately at this growing concentration, knowing that "her time" will come just as soon as the defeat of Hitler has been accomplished. "If such a situation develops," said Gen. Pearkes, "Canada's Pacific area, and the whole northwest, including Edmonton, will become seriously menaced."

Three leases were entered into between United States organizations and the city during the past few days in connection with northern projects. The U.S. Public Roads Administration leased two lots on 109 street, south of 107 avenue, for additional barracks for transient workers, and also leased property between 107 and 108 streets and the C.P.R. tracks and 86 avenue, for storage space. A lease was entered into between the city and Hamilton Construction Co., Metcalfe Construction Co., and the Kansas City Bridge Co., for the lease of land between Jasper avenue and 103 avenue, and 111 and 112 streets. The property will be used as the location of a reclassification yard for materials to be used in U.S. war construction projects.

Estimates for 1943 for the Edmonton Public School Board were passed at a meeting of that body. It was decided to demand from the city $1,350,000 for educational purposes this year. Alberta's $21,654,611 budget for the fiscal year 1943-44 was approved by the legislature in committee of supply Tuesday, when the final appropriations in the estimates were passed by the House.

Thursday

Given first reading in the legislature Wednesday was a bill introduced by J. C. Mahaffy, K.C., Independent, Calgary, entitled an act to amend the Limitation of Actions Act. It will protect creditors, and particularly individual creditors, whose claims have been outlawed, and who are without redress, owing to the recent ultra vires ruling on the Debt Adjustment Act. Notice of a resolution has been given by N. B. James, Social Credit, Edmonton, which will discuss in the legislature the recently-announced Dominion government ban on the employment of Canadian labor by American contractors in this area. The resolution, if adopted by the House, will ask the Ottawa authorities to cancel the order.

Inspection of all Canadian military establishments in Edmonton was made yesterday by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., D.S.O., M.C. general officer commanding-in-chief the Pacific Command. Promotion of three officers and two other ranks serving with the Canadian Army (Active) in Alberta has been announced by M.D. 13. Capt. Harry Finnegan M.C., of A16 C.I.T.C. Currie Barracks, and Capt. George E. Greave of No. 131 C.A. (B) T.C. at Camrose have been promoted to the rank of major. Lt. Harry C. Hughes of No. 131 C.A. (B) T.C. has been promoted to captain. Cpl. A. R. Woodruff of No. 13 Detachment Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, Calgary has been promoted to sergeant and Signalman W. A. Goodale of the same unit to corporal and all were residents of Edmonton prior to their enlistment.

Friday

Government and opposition sides of the Alberta legislature voted in unison to endorse by resolution the stand taken by the government, in refusing to accept the proposals of the Alberta Bondholders' Committee at the last refunding negotiations between the two parties. The resolution states the debenture debt of the province should be refunded, and urges the government to continue without delay its efforts to effect an equitable plan of refunding the debenture debt of the province. At the same time, A. J. Hooke, S.C., Rocky Mountain House, and chairman of the Social Credit Board, declared that three per cent was the highest rate that could be justified by such action.

Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British High Commissioner to Canada, predicted in an interview here that "in the post-war period Edmonton will be one of the most important cities in the world from the standpoint of air travel and transport." He said the air route through Edmonton and the northland will be the "swiftest and safest route from the Americas to Russia, China and possibly to eastern Europe."

Estimated revenue from the city utilities in profits and taxation in 1943 is set at $1,089,700, or the equivalent of 19 mills at the current tax rate. This was disclosed in the 1943 civic budget, consideration of which started at a special meeting of council last evening. The estimates of practically all the regular civic departments were tentatively approved, but will have to be reconsidered when agreement has been made on wages and working conditions between commissioners and the different civic unions.

Conservation of manpower may result in shorter hours in Edmonton. If the curtailment of shopping hours is approved by the retail trade here, it will be in line with steps taken in other Canadian cities to meet the drain of man and woman power to the nation's war effort. Housing committee of city council has decided to recommend to council that Mayor Fry proceed to Ottawa and Toronto to discuss with officials of Wartime Housing Limited, the terms under which wartime dwellings will be built in Edmonton.

On the sports front: Western Allan cup playdowns were underway this week with five senior clubs seeing action. After taking the first game of the series from Victoria, B.C. Army team, Calgary's A-16 Currie Army team dropped the second contest 2-1 on Thursday evening in Calgary. Winnipeg R.C.A.F. team completed its conquest of Port Arthur Bearcats by winning the odd game in five Monday night and then went on to take Regina Army Capitals 5-1 in the first game of the western semi-final on Wednesday. Four games were played in the Stanley cup series during the week. Detroit dropped the second game to Toronto but came back to cop the third contest to lead 2-1 on the series. Boston made it three in a row over Montreal's Canadiens in the best-of-seven series. The Bruins won Thursday night 3-2 in overtime at Montreal.

Edmonton's R.C.A.F. Red Devils from No. 3 "M" Depot took a 23-point lead over Raymond Union Jacks at the Arena last night in the opener of the two-game total-point series for the Alberta basketball championship. The final score was 67-44. The second game will be played Saturday.

Saturday

To insure victory in this war, streams of munitions, men, ships, guns, airplanes and ships must flow to the fighting men of Canada and the United Nations, Dr. M. M. MacOdrum of Ottawa, a member of the national war finance committee, stated at a luncheon meeting at the Macdonald hotel. He was speaking as a forerunner to the Victory Loan campaign that is just around the corner. Dr. MacOdrum said that the dollars of Canadians must be put to work to produce munitions, and other implements of war. The Fourth Victory Loan, to be launched next month, will give the Canadian people a chance to answer the government's call to aid the fighting men to drive to victory. He pointed out that a strong organization would be essential to achieve the result, which is $1,100,000,000.

Mr. Justice George B. O'Connor of the Alberta supreme court in addressing the Northern Alberta Fish and Game Protective League at the Memorial hall Friday night on "Young Sportsmen and Good Citizenship," stated that nature knows an orderly arrangement of all things. Nature kept the rules and played the game. There would be enough for all if none wasted materials.

The Alberta legislature is hoping to enter on Monday the home stretch of its present session and to prorogue by Wednesday. The opposition has had its fling in the public accounts committee of carrying on an investigation into expenditures of public funds in the treasury branch system. Not content with that the boys across the floor sought to determine future policy, which actually has nothing to do with past accounts which have been paid. Therefore the whole probe was declared, as the courts are wont to put it, "ultra vires."

A high wind last night produced a little snow and gave promise of a real storm. This morning there is an absence of wind, but there is a slight indication of snow, although the temperature is milder.

Here's hoping that the weather will remain mild and that the promised and expected storm will not develop.

That is all for now. Best of luck until next week.

A Basis for Refunding

Members of the legislature were unanimous in supporting the resolution that the Government should continue efforts to refund the debt of the province, with 3½ per cent the maximum rate of interest on the replacement bonds.

The fact that the vote was unanimous should carry significance for the holders of the outstanding bonds, and should help speed the negotiations. The bond-holders now have a declaration from all the representatives of all the political groups that 3½ per cent is as high a rate as the taxpayers of the province can pay. With this definite and unanimous declaration to go on, it is to be hoped the refunding may become an accomplished fact without unnecessary delay.

Should this be accomplished, the market value of outstanding bonds will be stabilized, and at a higher level than now prevails. That is a matter of great importance to holders of limited means who may wish to turn their securities into cash.

How Much Meat?

With meat rationing just around the corner, Canadians will note with interest that our neighbors south of the boundary are now limited to 2½ pounds of steak or 3 1-5 pounds of hamburger per person per week. But if anyone goes to these limits he will have to get along with less butter, lard, cheese or canned fish than he could otherwise get. A sample ration is given as 2 pounds of meat plus ¼ pound of butter and ¼ pound of cheese.

In Canada we are now allowed ½ pound of butter per person per week, which would mean less than 2 pounds of meat each per week under a parallel rationing plan here, though it is doubtful if many Canadians eat ¼ pound of cheese in a week each.

The moral of course is that the meat scarcity is a reality in this continent, and that supplies of these other things are far from plentiful. When Canadians have to turn in coupons for meat, as they will likely have to do before long, they will have the consolation of knowing that their neighbors are faring likewise. And the very great satisfaction of knowing that these restrictions have to be imposed in this continent largely because of the great quantities of these foods we are sending to Britain and Russia and other countries in which they are needed desperately.

Struggling in the Net

The fighting in southern Tunisia is fierce, as it was bound to be, and it may be prolonged. The attack on the Mareth forts and the grinding advance of American and French forces across his line of retreat are leaving Rommel no alternative but to fight or surrender. Which he wlil do is not in doubt.

The correct symbol is that of a tiger caught in a net, which is not closed but closing. Once closed, the Afrika Korps can slash, but that it can tear a way out is not likely. The net was designed to hold, and to tighten as it holds. If the Allies have men enough and machines enough that is what must happen.

There is only one direction—the north—in which it would profit the encircled enemy to break out. To drive through the 8th Army into the desert, or eastward into the interior of the colony—if either could be done—would only cut Rommel off from von Arnim in the north and from his supply ports on the coast. That he will fight furiously to keep the northern road open is to be supposed—as furiously as the 8th Army will let him.

The aim of General Montgomery is perhaps not to rout Rommel's army forthwith, but to keep it so busy fighting on the Mareth line that it will not be able to prevent the Allies to the north reaching Gabes, closing the net and consolidating their position.

The Balance Sheet

Three weeks ago Berlin announced that the counter-thrust in the Ukraine had carried the Nazi forces to the Donets river. They have made no appreciable gain in the interval. The indication is that the drive has lost momentum; or that this is as far as the High Command think it safe to push the advance, since this would involve exposing a still longer flank to the Russians in the north.

The Red army advance toward Smolensk has at the same time slowed down, due to mud and stiffer resistance. On neither sector has there been movement in recent days to compare with the pace in previous weeks. The antagonists appear to have reached something approaching a deadlock, though the Russians are still making some headway. Soft ground and floods may prevent any marked change in the situation until spring conditions have passed.

If so, the Russians have decidedly the better of the winter fighting on balance. The enemy is now 400 miles from Stalingrad and has lost half the ground between the Don and the Dneiper, while holding only a bridgehead on the coast of the Caucasus. To the north the fortress of Kursk is firmly held by the Red army, and still farther north the approach toward Smolensk has thrust a salient 200 miles from Moscow which overhangs the Nazi communication lines to the Donets.

To the tremendous losses of men and material which the Nazis suffered in their retreat during the winter, have been added further and serious losses of men and expenditure of munitions in the defence-offensive that had to be launched to save their whole southern wing from destruction. In effect the enemy was compelled to start his "summer" offensive three months or more ahead of time. The difficulties of organizing a full scale drive eastward in the early summer will be correspondingly greater while the dangers of such a move are greater than a year ago because of that overhanging Russian salient west of Moscow.

Not less important, the Russians have emerged victorious from a second winter campaign, with ample reserves of manpower and larger supplies of equipment than they have ever had. It is Hitler, not Stalin, who must look back to the winter with dissatisfaction, and forward to the summer with misgiving.

The debate on the budget at Ottawa ended Thursday evening. It continued for three weeks, and all the schools of fiscal philosophy, and foolishness, were heard from. Budgets only a fraction of the size have been debated far longer; which indicates the sober sense of the members generally in recognizing the stern necessity of getting on with the wartime business.

Allied bombers apparently caught another Japanese drive toward Australia in the making, when they found 250 enemy planes grounded at Rabaul and messed up the formation wtih 54 tons of bombs. This concentration confirms recent reports that Jap air strength was being built up in the island arc, in preparation for another move on New Guinea. As all the attacking planes returned to their bases, the build-up evidently failed to disturb Allied control of the island air.

Another Question

Editor, Bulletin: The question of what to do with Hitler after the war, is interesting. But there is another question very interesting and important right at home which needs planning and discussing.

And that is, What are we going to do with our money sharks and politicians after the war?

I would suggest we put them in a relief camp with Hitler, seeing that they always got along together so well, and helped each other out on many occasions. It would be a shame to separate friends.

Butter Supplies

Editor, Bulletin: I was wondering if the government economists had become alive to the fact that to restrict consumption is to curtail production. The rationing of butter is bringing a hardship on the small farmer's wife who depends on her butter from one or two cows to keep the family's necessities running. If there is a shortage or a danger of a shortage, the most likely way of overcoming same would be the encouragement of production by giving a bonus on monthly output, instead of forcing farmers to get rid of their cows because they can't sell their butter. Not many places have a creamery.

Spread It Around

Editor Bulletin: A new racket is operating in Edmonton these days in numerous service clubs and lodges. It would appear our friends from the British Isles get their heads together, and, when there are a few dollars in the treasury—one of them jumps to his feet and makes a motion to the effect we give it to some service in England, to which the seconder jumps up just as quickly to second it. It therefore passes.

Why not spread these funds around. Goodness knows there are numerous places where they could be used besides England.

Prohibition Evils

Editor, Bulletin: The National Union of Railwaymen strongly protests the newly imposed liquor restrictions on the grounds that these restrictions are not promoting true temperance but are, in fact, bringing upon us again all the evils of prohibition days.

The experiment in prohibition twenty-odd years ago proved that men and women cannot be legislated into temperance. They can be educated and encouraged but not compelled to practice moderation. The fact that when a man wants a drink he will get it—legally, or illegally — is being demonstrated very noticeably again in various Canadian communities where, already, the home brewer and illicit distiller are openly flouting the law, and the toll of bootlegging, moonshining, hi-jacking, bribery and assault is on the increase.

The recent measures adopted by the government aggravate rather than solve the problem of liquor consumption in Canada. If the national level of sobriety and temperance is to be raised, it will be accomplished by a process of precept, education and example, and not by prohibition.

Canada's worker, like his compatriot in Britain, endures better the strain of longer hours and speeded-up production when he can get a nutritional and stimulating beverage to round out rationed tea and coffee. But the beverage should be made under government supervision in a sanitary plant, not brewed of questionable, perhops harmful, ingredients in some dirty cellar by a conscienceless lawbreaker.

Support for prohibition comes mainly from that unholy trinity—bootlegger, gangster and prohibitionist. Striking at the very principle on which democracy is founded, prohibition laws appeal only to those who might be labelled "professional prohibitionists", and those others who may be deceived into accepting this campaign to legislate men into teetotalism as a war conservation measure.

Public opinion should make its voice heard at Ottawa, in louder and more forceful tones than the "temperance" pressure groups, against the move under way to inveigle this country into another ghastly experiment in prohibition.

Taxing Actual Wage

Editor Bulletin: At present a man's wages are taxed on the hourly or rather basic weekly rate which includes a cost-of-living bonus up to 44 hours. Now, in a lot of cases many skilled men are required to work overtime which does not include cost-of-living bonus, but is taxed and in some cases it hits so hard that a man practically loses two-thirds of his overtime money; so in a lot of cases he does not want to work overtime, or if he really has to he lays off work during the basic week which ha a tendency to slow up production. For instance, a man makes, say, $50 odd a week and he buys a war bond $4.03, weekly tax about $5 and unemployment insurance, Workmen's Compensation Board and group insurance. It mounts up to about $11 a week. Now, a married man with four children and the cost-of-living where it now stands gets hit right hard. So why not just tax the actual weekly wage? I know for a positive fact that the man-hour production would climb rapidly.

Darwin Theory

Editor, Bulletin: Mr. Baronsfeather's letter interested me and I was sorry that I could not recall Mr. Heustis's letter. As to Mr Baronsfeather's reference to evolution I take it he had in mind the Darwin theory.

Now Mr. Darwin evolved his theory when I was a kid some fifty years ago. The newspapers reporting his theory said that he even went to far as to have himself hung in a cage in the African Jungle to learn the Monkey language and if possible to thus find out more about our ancestry.

It has always been my impression that the religious institutes were bitterly opposed to this theory and so loud and long were their denunciations that many people came to regard Evolution and this theory as the same thing forgetting that evolution means growth.

I really believe that the cause of conditions he speaks of can more truly be placed on what he speaks of in the last part of his letter as "Ideas of religion usually erroneous" and especially one the idea of substitution. Which teaches that because of the death on "The Cross" two thousand years ago people can escape the results of wrongs done now.

If the teachings "As ye sow so shall ye reap" and what the effect of our lives in this body has on our lives after losing the body as shown in the Parable of The Rich man and Lazaraus were kept continually before the people instead of these other ideas this certainly would be a better world to live in. And our courts would have less to do.

Important Job

Editor, Bulletin: The chief industry of a nation is the education of its people. Self government is largely a farce where the citizens are not socially and economically educated to take on the essential duties of citizenship.

The minister of education should be the prime minister; at least the education ministry should not be subordinate to the ministry of finance or any other governmental department.

At present war is and must be the nation's chief industry. When war ceases to command the heroism of the people there will be a great void as always has been after a war. What possibly can take the place of war to call out heroic effort of the people?

Many are now sacrificing self in every way for the common weal and liking it. Many men, and women too, are ready to die that others might live. This is heroic living. But in peacetime can there not be heroic living? Yea, verily, if our people can become really educated for the postwar world, so educated that this war will be the last one on the face of the earth.

The chief responsibility for lighting the path to social betterment lies with the teaching profession in school and in church, but the task is for all of us, young and old both, to learn and teach the truly democratic way of life. It is everyone's task to provide without stint the means for the equipment of the teaching profession to carry on the most important business of the state.

How to Impress a Businessman

Most People Admire Mental Honesty, Kindliness and Consideration

MARY ALICE QUAYNE

The question of how to entertain a businessman you wish to impress has been asked by both men and woman.

I feel this is rather a sinister subject because the implication is that you want to impress your guest so you can get something from him. Perhaps this would come better under the head of salesmanship than of entertainment.

But I suppose all entertainment partakes of the nature of salesmanship, to a greater or lesser degree, so we must not be too analytical.

However, it is quite legitimate to try to impress people.

The difference between making an effort to make people like you for social reasons and making an effort to make people pleased with you for business reasons is only a difference of degree.

If you want to impress anyone, you naturally discover, first, what qualities please that person most. Having discovered that, which must be a problem for your own ingenuity, you set out, not to assume those qualities falsely, but to actually develop them in yourself.

That is not so difficult as it sounds. By intensive thought and practice, anyone can almost entirely change his mental habits in two weeks. At least, if he or she does not develop new charms, he or she can eliminate those faults and habits which repel people.

Don't Pretend

If you want to impress someone, don't pretend. Whatever you do, don't pretend. And don't show off.

Don't seek to impress a businessman by asking a number of people to your party who will be merely a background to your own wit or intelligence. That sort of staged display doesn't impress anyone. For instance if you discover in advance that your guest-to-be is an orchid enthusiast, it might be well to acquire a slight knowledge of that flower but don't pour over the technical books so that your conversation shows it. It might be well to have a few intelligent questions about this complex flower but don't try to equal his knowledge.

The qualities that most people admire are mental honesty, kindliness, gentility and consideration. It doesn't require very much practice to bring out this side of your nature. For these are qualities that everyone possess. Just stop stifling them.

To impress a guest, whether he is a businessman or anyone else, manifest a reasonable interest in his work. Ask intelligent questions. Be sure they are intelligent.

Let Guest Talk

Don't talk too much yourself. Lead your guest to do the talking. Let him express himself. The surest way to make a person think you are intelligent is to encourage him to air his own intelligence.

Important people adore a good listener.

And above all, be natural. This is the essence of all good entertaining—be natural. It is also the essence of good breeding.

Being a good hostess doesn't mean parking your natural, friendly, everyday self and putting on a personality for the occasion that is as stiff and uncomfortable as your great-grandmother's hoop skirt, and as old-fashioned.

You don't need a lot of money, a big house, a staff of well-trained servants, expensive and elaborate food, professional entertainers or a luxurious setting to be a successful host or hostess.

The recipe for a perfect party is: Take what you've got, mix well with imagination, courage, a dash of humor and the desire to enjoy life. The result is guaranteed to please.

Pretence, pomposity, affection, vanity—all these are sure ways to lose friends and repel people.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—C.I.O. President Phil Murray heard some kind words spoken about labor unions, and also some caustic ones, at an off-the-record dinner which he gave to 30 members of the House of Representatives recently.

The dinner was held in a private dining room of Washington's new Hotel Statler, where, over chicken (one piece) and mashed potatoes, Murray and other top C.I.O. leaders had a candid talk with the Congressmen about labor's co-operation in the war effort.

"I didn't invite you Congressmen here to ask favors of you," said the C.I.O. boss. "I want you to take down your hair and tell us what you think of the C.I.O. The franker the better."

The legislators took Murray at his word. The get-together lasted from 8 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. and everyone had something to say. Most of the speeches were friendly to labor, but at least two Representatives turned on the vitriol. They were Charles M. LaFollette, freshman Indiana Republican (no relation to the Senator from Wisconsin) and George G. Sadowski, Michigan Democrat.

Constructive Blast

Sadowski's blast was along constructive lines. He charged that too many union leaders were "playing politics," and that many leaders want to "run for office" the moment they become prominent in labor. He cited the case of a Michigan C.I.O. official who grabbed off a big job for which he was unfitted in an OPA regional rent control office, and whose mistakes he said were giving labor a black eye in the vicinity.

La Follette tore into the C.I.O. for backing New Deal Representative Ray McKeough of Illinois against Republican Senator "Curly" Brooks in the last senatorial election. Murray didn't have to reply. The Hoosier's speech was so patently political and prejudicial to McKeough, a highly popular House figure, that several Congressmen walked out on him.

Representatives Warren Magnuson of Washington, Michael Bradley of Pennsylvania, "Mike" Kirwan of Ohio, John Lesinski of Michigan and others, struck some forensic blows for labor's participation in the war effort after listening to a frank talk by Murray, who defended labor against charges of "absenteeism."

Giving Their All

"I want you gentlemen to know that C.I.O. unions are giving their all in this struggle" Murray declared. "Whatever absenteeism we are guilty of is involuntary, due to illness, lack of transportation or other unavoidable causes. I've sent down personal orders to the leaders of every C.I.O. union in the country to stop absenteeism. We're also doing all in our power to prevent strikes. The record shows that."

Republican Representative Geo. H. Bender of Ohio, a frequent critic of New Deal policies, almost caused the other guests to fall out of their chairs by loudly applauding Murray's speech and declaring that "every member of Congress should have been here to listen to it."

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON.—I read not long ago a most interesting speech delivered in Congress by Representative Walter H. Judd, on the background of our whole relations with Japan. It stopped just short of his final conclusions, his time having come to an end. I was, therefore, particularly glad yesterday to have an opportunity to invite him to lunch and to have him discuss the whole question.

He emphasizes the fact that, to some nationalities the realization that we, the white race, are not according them respect and equal treatment as a race, is even more important than anything we may do from an economic standpoint.

Lesson to Learn

I have felt for a long time that this was a lesson we would have to learn before peace could be built on any firm foundation. People can not be judged by the color of their skin. Frequently a sense that others look down upon us forces us into doing foolish and evil things.

We can easily see that among our friends. I have known people to indulge in foolish extravagances, simply because they did not have enough self-assurance to feel that respect for them was not dependent on their material situation. I have known people to be disagreeable, because they were afraid if they were agreeable people would think they were currying favor.

Our psychologists have a long study before them in learning how to make some of us, who are rather arrogant, approach life with a humility which the Christian religion should teach us, but which few people seem to have unless they are absolutely self-confident.

Interesting Report

Miss Harriet Elliott came to my press conference this morning and gave a most interesting report on the work of the women in selling war stamps and bonds. From my own observation, I think she has been able to enlist very capable women in various localities, who do this work with complete devotion and as conscientiously as though it were a full time paid job.

At 1 o'clock, I leave for Hartford, Conn., where the women's division of the Hartford defence council is holding a rally tonight.

I happened to notice the other day a window display in a shop at 461 Sixth avenue, New York City, which a better citizens' group, members of the Leeague for Women Voters is running.

The display is interesting in itself and the shop is open from 4 to 6, five days a week. They distribute material on such subjects as isolationism, manpower, lend-lease, child labor and the like. I imagine the league is undertaking this in many communities and I think it is very valuable to the enlightenment of the average citizen.

Major And Minor Notes

By John Oliver

JOHN OLIVER

TIDINGS of outstanding stars in the musical world who are familiar to Edmontonians either through personal appearances or reputation, are contained in a letter received by Mrs. Ernest Meaden, manager of the Women's Musical Club Celebrity Series of concerts, from Fred M. Gee, Winnipeg impressario who co-operates with the club in bringing the artists. Mr. Gee has returned to Winnipeg from New York where he heard many leaders of the opera stage and concert platform, and from which city he wrote of his experiences. His communication bears strong testimony of the splendid programs heard, and while it gives no indication of the make-up of next season's Celebrity Series, it does bring to mind artists who have been here in the past, and mentions some who may be included in the 1943-44 roster.

• • •

Mr. Gee obviously was much impressed with Mona Paulee, Edmonton-born mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Association, and star of the concert platform and radio. Writing of Miss Paulee, he stated: "I have heard many of the up-and-coming young singers in concert, opera, broadcasts, and private auditions given for impressarios. The best of these, in my opinion, are Eileen Farrell, soprano; Mona Parlee, mezzo-soprano, and Martha Lipton, contralto. Mona Paulee won the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air two years ago in competition with hundreds of selected singers, and now sings principal roles often at the Met, although still in her early twenties.

• • •

"She has a remarkable range, from low G to E above the staff; more than two and a half octaves. Miss Paulee was born in Edmonton, of French and Russian parentage, and as far as I know, is the only western Canadian to become a Metropolitan Opera leading singer. After hearing her sing a concert program, I can sincerely say that the west may well be proud of this young prima donna."

• • •

Carroll Glenn, United States violinist, who opened the 1942-1943 Celebrity Series here last October, received considerable attention from Mr. Gee. He stated that "I heard Carroll Glenn . . . as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy. Miss Glenn, and her mother were driven out of their Riverside apartment by fire at 2 a.m. two weeks ago. They were rescued by firemen who carried them down the fire escape in their night garments, Carroll clutching her beloved fiddle, while her mother had a dog. This is all they saved (no insurance incidentally). Carroll lost her entire musical library, her gowns and other valuables, even the railroad tickets for a tour which commenced on the following day. However, she appeared in Cleveland two days later, and gave a successful performance, apparently none the worse for her experience. The New York papers published a photograph of Carroll being carried down the fire escape by a fireman with her bare feet facing the camera."

• • •

Mr. Gee's letter contains much more of interest. Here are some further extracts: "I have heard many new pianists this month. The Brazilian colony turned out in force to hear Arnaldo Estrella, who won an award offered to the best young Brazilian pianist by Madame Guiomar Novaes. . . . In the lobby I met Bidu Sayao (she sang here two years ago) and her mother, also Madame Novaes. Rudolf Fikusny, new Czechoslovakian pianist, is another of the most brilliant young virtuosos. He gave the first performance, at his concert, of a Fantasie and Rondo by the Czech composer, Martinu, who was in the audience and bowed his acknowledgments.

• • •

"Ellen Ballon, French-Canadian pianist, gave a recital at the Harvard Club on a Sunday afternoon. She is certainly one of Canada's finest pianists. The most extraordinarly artist among the new arrivals is Alexander Uninsky, Russian pianist, who played in Carnegie Hall. His technical feats are wellnigh incredible-octaves, double-thirds, and scales of unbelievable speed. It was the loudest piano-playing I have ever heard or expect to hear. And he is a meek, bespectacled, harmless-looking little man who gives one the impression that he would not hurt a fly, much less a 10-foot concert grand piano.

• • •

"Josef Lhevinne, one of the greatest pianists of our time, gave a most satisfying recital, full of beauty and poetry. His Chopin playing is something to remember. I heard Casadesus in his Carnegie Hall triumph. Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, duo-pianists, gave their annual New York recital last week. They have a tremendous following, and the hall was crowded. I was particularly interested to hear them give the first New York performance of Arthur Benjamin's Jamaica Rhumba which made such a hit that they had to repeat it . . . I heard Lauritz Melchior, Wagnerian tenor, several times at the opera. He is still the only heroic tenor here who can sing Wagner adequately.

• • •

"The tenor of the year is Jan Peerce, who is now in tremendous demand at the Met, and in concerts throughout the country. I attended his recital in Brooklyn. His voice reminds me more of Caruso's than any other tenor. His singing of German lieder, French art songs and English ballads is a thing of beauty. Another tenor who is rapidly coming to the front is James Melton.

• • •

"Richard Crooks (who sang here in January) is not here just now. He was flown to Australia in an army bombing plane to sing for the American and Australian troops down under." Mr. Gee mentions hearing Marjorie Lawrence and Helen Traubel, and then two other artists who have appeared here, Alexander Kipnis and Lansing Hatfield. On this point, he wrote, "The most interesting evening I spent at the opera house was at a performance of Mussorgsky's Boris Godunoff, with Alexander Kipnis as King Boris, and a lengthy roster of 23 principal singers. Our old friends John Dudley and Lansing Hatfield sang principal roles. Kipnis sang and acted magnificently. It was strange to hear him sing in Russian throughout, while all the other principals, and the chorus sang in Italian." All of which would indicate that Mr. Gee spent an enjoyable, entertaining and uplifting time along Broadway and its adjacent thoroughfares, even though, due to the exigencies of war and the imminence of prowling U-boats, the gay white way, no longer is white at night.

• • •

Robert Schumann will be honored by the regular meeting of the Women's Musical Club, to be held at the Masonic Temple on Saturday next. The entire program will be devoted to his works. Dina Heckleman, violinist, and Sadie Samuels, pianist, will play a sonata; Mrs. G. C. Higgin, soprano, will give several songs; Mrs. Frances Wooton will give a biographical sketch of Schumann, and Hazel Taylor will play the first movement of his Piano Concerto, with the Edmonton Philharmonic Orchestra providing the orchestral accompaniment. Ronald Shean is the conductor of this group, which will be making its first public appearance after a year of careful and painstaking rehearsal.

• • •

The operetta "The Cobbler of Fairyland" presented recently by the junior choir of Norwood United church, which was such an outstanding success when produced two weeks ago under the direction of Mrs. A. Wotherspoon, will be repeated at 8:15 p.m. on Friday, April 2, at the church auditorium. When previously produced many desiring to attend, were unable to gain admittance and the repeat performance is to accommodate them.

100,000 Unfit Men Given Discharges, Commons Informed

OTTAWA, March 27.—(CP)—Defence Minister Ralston yesterday told the House of Commons that of the 100,000 unfit who had been discharged from the army to date only about 6,000 had been overseas.

He was replying to comments from Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross (Prog. Con. Souris) on the cost to the country of the 100,000 who had been found unfit and his suggestions that this cost, which he estimated at $20,000,000, might be classed in part as avoidable waste.

Col. Ralston said percentages of discharges in the Canadian Army, he believed, were no higher than in any other country under similar circumstances.

District News in Brief

Rosalind Boy Is Reported Missing

ROSALIND—Son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. MacDonald, P.O. James Kenneth MacDonald has been reported missing, believed killed, according to word received by his parents.

P.O. MacDonald joined the air force in September, 1941, and received his wings and commission at Regina, July, 1943, after training at Edmonton, Calgary and Regina. He had transferred from the army to the air force.

He was born in Rosalind and attended school there and at Alberta college, Edmonton. He was a member of Rosalind Elks' lodge No. 209.

Surviving him besides his parents are two sisters, Mrs. G. Brimacombe, Windsor, N.S., and Colleen and home, and three brothers, Edmund, Stanley and Gordon, all at home.

Fire Destroys Large Warehouse

GRANDE PRAIRIE — Fire, believed to have been caused by a spark from the exhaust of a tractor which was being tried out, completely destroyed the trackage warehouse and most of its contents of the Cockshutt Plow Co., this week. The large wholesale warehouse of Marshall-Wells nearby was endangered, the roof catching fire, but it was saved by a bucket brigade many of whom were cadets of a company stationed nearby.

Breaking out about 4:30 p.m., the fire was out of control before the fire brigade could reach the scene. Volunteers managed to push a new binder and some bags of oats to safety but within an hour all that was left of the large stock of machinery in the building was a mass of twisted metal. A Northern Alberta Railways freight car standing on the track nearby was damaged by the fire.

Goods were quickly removed from the Marshall-Wells building among them several pails which were used by the bucket brigade to extinguish the blaze on the roof. Melted snow formed a pool of water which the brigade was able to put to good use.

The loss of the farm machinery will be keenly felt with spring work approaching and machinery so difficult to obtain.

This is the second largest fire in Grande Prairie in one week as Crummy's garage was destroyed a few days earlier.

Reserve Is Well Equipped Army

Guide Unit

CAPT. C. E. GARNETT

CAPT. G. H. N. MONKMAN

Edmonton Unit

Ordnance Workshop Unit Keeps Army's Equipment Rolling

In all walks of life there are people who, while doing most vital work, are always in the background and remain undistinguished in the world at large. There are "workers behind the scenes" in the Canadian Army too, and a foremost example is the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps.

No. 1 (Res) Armored Divisional Workshop, R.C.O.C., at Edmonton has headquarters in Connaught Armory. The unit is under the command of Capt. Charles E. Garnett.

Men of the unit take a certain amount of military training, but, unlike infantry units, emphasis is placed on subjects associated with the mechanized forces and parade ground training is held to a minimum.

Added to workshop training, all men in Ordnance Workshops receive lessons in driving vehicles.

All officers of the Ordnance Workshop are qualified engineers while many of the non-commissioned officers have had extensive workshop training.

EQUIPMENT RECEIVED

Last autumn equipment was received to equip a workshop in the South Side Armory. This included mechanics' tools, lathe, vertical drill press, oxy-acetylene plant and a blacksmith shop.

Capt. G. H. N. Monkman and Lieuts. J. C. Dale and R. R. Cooper have played an important part in the training of the men of the unit during the winter months.

The R.C.O.C. is responsible for the supply and maintenance of all stores—guns of all types, ammunition, tanks, armored cars, lorries, clothing and the myriad necessaries of warfare for all units of the army.

Ordnance supplies everything to the armed forces except food, fuel and quarters. The corps estimates needs, watches production, accepts delivery, distributes and repairs. As warfare has developed so the army's weapons and equipment have swollen in number, and in like ratio the work and importance of the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps has increased. In 1918 the corps handled 40,000 items. Today it deals with 400,000 varying from nuts and bolts to tanks and howitzers.

The R.C.A.C. can, in fact, be pictured as a very large wholesale house and at the same time a very large chain store, and in addition a chain of machine shops and repair depots.

VARY IN SIZE

Ordnance workshops at home vary considerably in equipment and size just as the services they render differ greatly. Many of them are large, modern buildings equipped with the most up-to-date tools and staffed by expert mechanics, engineers and fitters. On the other hand there are hundreds of small establishments, often consisting of peace time garages taken over since the outbreak of war, and just as well equipped for the work they are expected to do.

In the theatres of war, ordnance workships are accompanied by ordnance field parks to hold the necess-ary stores. Near the front are the echelon light aid detachments—small parties of artificers equipped with hand tools and recovery equipment. They give expert advice to units, and carry out urgent repairs sufficient to keep an ormored car or truck on the road or in action.

MOBILE UNITS

Further back are the divisional ordnance workshop and ordnance field park. They are sufficiently near the front line to necessitate their being mobile units. Manned by ordnance personnel they are equipped to carry out complicated repairs such as replacement or assembly work. While they are capable of effecting many repairs they generally restrict themselves to urgent jobs which can be done rapidly. To clutter themselves with long jobs would be to impair their mobility.

All extensive repair work is passed back to the rear. Corps and army troops have their own workshops and field parks which are classed as "non-divisional." They are mobile.

Army ordnance workshops and field parks come next. These are semi-mobile units better able to complete major repairs by reason of their distance from the front line. They are equipped with power-driven tools and a large stock of spare assemblies and repair materials.

Armored divisions have their workshops in the forward area to carry out special repair work that the tanks and armored cars need.

Far behind the forward area are the static base workshops capable of doing any repair work and even original manufacturing.

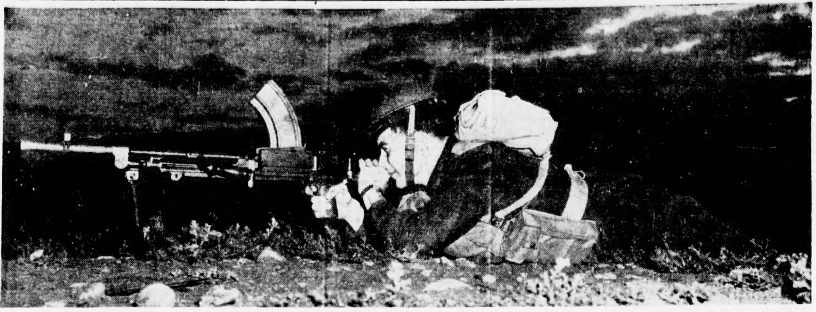
Handling of stores for troops necessitates establishment of mammoth store houses of material as well as packing centres so that the parcels, bales, crates and kegs of supplies are made ready for shipping.

Famous Bren Gun Used by Reserves

The essential Bren Light Machine gun, the automatic weapon used the world over by Allied armies, is one of the weapons reserve army soldiers learn to use early in their training. It is dependable, extremely accurate and easy to handle. Reserve army troops must pass tests in the use of the gun.

They are permitted to fire it on the ranges at Winterburn as often as possible.

Alberta's Reserve Army Units Have Latest Weapons



Members of the Reserve Army receive intensive training in handling and firing the Bren light machine gun. A few weeks in the Reserve, and every man can, not only fire this gun, but take it apart and put it together again. To fire the Bren and Tommy gun on the outdoor range is a worthwhile experience for any man.

Three Hours Weekly Needed For Reserve

When a man joints the Reserve Army today he does not necessarily cut himself adrift from his domestic or recreation activities. He can still put in his garden, play his golf and do his fishing without interference from his obligation to the Reserve Unit Training.

In the course of a year, the maximum amount of hours a Reserve Army man can spend in training is figured at 45 days or 3660 hours in an entire year. Two weekly parades are called for seven-thirty or seven forty-five in most units and consist of three periods to ten o'clock in the evening. This means that you spend only on the average of less than three hours twice a week.

Frequently during the summer months, Sunday schemes are arranged for the various units. While these schemes are not in any sense compulsory, they are beneficial to phyisical health, and instructive. They constitute actual field operations, tactical schemes and shooting on the range. Any man in the Reserve considers a Sunday well spent if he has the opportunity of shooting twenty or thirty rounds with his rifle or Bren gun.

Armored Workshops Handle Army's Mechanical Vehicles

By CAPT. CHARLES E. GARNETT

The history of the Royal Ordnance Corps is shrouded in antiquity. The corps was originally charged with the responsibility of providing and maintaining guns and other weapons and as war became more complicated, issued all military stores with the exception of food.

When mechanization became the rule, expansion of the activities of the corps naturally ensued and with the advent of tanks, troop carriers and mechanical transport of all kinds, it became necessary to create an organization to maintain this equipment, hence the estabment of the Armored Divisional Ordnance Workshops.

ROMMEL ASTOUNDS

At the beginning of the campaign in western Egypt, the rapidity of the repair of the disabled tanks, transports, etc., by Rommel's army was astounding and could only be accounted for by their wonderful system of workshops. The Royal Army Ordnance Corps organizations must also be mighty efficient in order to have permitted the 8th Army to have kept up its relentless pursuit of the Afrika Korps.

The 1st Canadian Armored Divisional Ordnance Workshop, R.C.O.C., located at the Connaught armories, is being trained along similar lines, to enable its members to give the same service to our Reserve army in the event that we should be called upon to defend our homes from attack. The training consists of lectures dealing with the principles of internal combustion engines, including diesel and gasoline engines, the mechanical parts of various military equipment such as tanks, jeeps and transport, as well as practical training in their maintenance, and in welding and machine shop practice.

TRAINING IN ARMS

In addition, all men are taught the elements of training in arms such as rifle shooting, the Bren gun, the anti-tank rifle, the Reising gun, trench mortar, etc.

The training at camp, which commences July 18 and during the week-end exercises, will consist of recovery of disabled vehicles, the maintenance and repair of armored battle equipment and the principles of modern warfare. All our men have to learn to operate and maintain wheeled- and tread-equipped vehicles and to qualify as military drivers.

In addition to our regular parades on Mondays and Fridays, we maintain voluntary classes, under full time thoroughly trained army instructors, covering welding in all its branches, machinist's classes teaching the operation of the lathe, the drill press, bench work, grinding and general mechanical subjects. We are also conducting a complete armorers' course and intend shortly to establish a class in motor mechanics and, possibly, a blacksmith's course.

THE EQUIPMENT

Our instructional quipment consists of two welding outfits, an electric welding set, a thoroughly modern lathe, two drill presses, a motor driven grinder, a complete blacksmith shop, benches with vises and every tool necessary for our instruction, as well as cut-away models of engines, transmissions, differentials, etc. We also have a modern Bren gun carrier, a motorcycle and sidecar, and have the entire use of all the military vehicles necessary for our training.

The Connaught armories on the South Side is ideally suited to our purpose. It is equipped with a double bowling alley, a rifle range and regimental institute, a fully furnished sergeants' mess and the usual offices. Our machine and welding shop are the envy of everyone who visits them.

We are also organizing four light aid detachments which will be trained similarly to our workshop and, in addition, to make repairs to equipment which the drivers cannot carry out.

SUPPORT GROUP

In Ponoka, we have our support group, under Capt. H. Skinner, whose training and equipment is similar to our own and those in that area are requested to contact him.

We are organizing a trumpet band and will welcome youths over 16 to train as drummers and trumpeters.

Joining our corps not only enables you to learn how to defend your home, it provides healthy outdoor exercise, companionship and recreation, how to make things and most important of all, the subjects we teach will always be useful no matter what your civilian occupation may be. The interest taken in our training is demonstrated by the fact that our average attendance on parades is 80 per cent. of our effective strength.

Come to Connaught armory on Monday or Friday evenings.

To offset the cost of transportation to and from parades, we issue free street car tickets and, to enable those men who use their own cars to purchase additional gasoline, we will arrange special privileges.

Would Guard Against Canadian Pearl Harbor

We have heard many times the fighting slogan of the American nation, "Remember Pearl Harbor." Until that calm morning when, without warning, Jap bombers struck American ships, destroyed American planes and mercilessly machine-gunned unprotected women and children, millions of people thought "it couldn't happen here."

Many people in Alberta still believe that the Japanese cannot land here. But do they realize that the long west coast of British Columbia is no further from Japan than is Australia. Do they realize that Japan, with its teeming millions has a veteran army of over four million of which only about 500,000 are being used in all fronts?

CONSERVING FORCE

It doesn't take a military genius to appreciate the fact that Japan is also conserving its airforce. No major part has been played by this force for many months . . . and why? Military authorities are well aware that the Japanese are up to something. They know that they will take any chance and, if in the event, things start rolling toward Japan, there is every reason to believe that the Japs will try a sneak invasion on the American continent to divert Allied forces.

In the event, and only in the event of immediate peril to our shores, the Reserve Army will be called upon to play its part. Whether you are in it or not, every able-bodied man, no matter what age he may be will be called out for duty. Reserve army training right now, will equip you to play the most effective part. A strong up to full strength. Reserve army is our best assurance against invasion.

MEN LIKE THIS PROVE IT CAN BE DONE

Yes . . . every night in the week, hundreds of men work up to six at night . . . step into their homes in their business or working clothes . . . and, in a few minutes, they're in uniform . . . they're soldiers! They prove that it can be done! And these men are doing just that at least once or twice a week. WHY NOT GIVE IT A TRY? Step down and see for yourself how Reserve Army Training can fit into your way of life without undue dislocation of your business or social affairs.

No further from Japan than the coast of Australia, our British Columbia coastline is a logical spot for those yellow devils to invade North America. Once they land, air bases can be quickly established to raid our Alberta cities and towns. The job of the Reserve Army is to back up our active forces and help drive out the invader. It is a job any man who can hold a gun can not turn his back on. It is a job every man will be called upon to do in an emergency. He can do his part ten times better with proper training.

DON'T WAIT! JOIN CANADA'S HOME GUARD RESERVE ARMY AND KEEP THOSE BLOOD-STAINED FINGERS AWAY FROM OUR SHORES!

Right now the Reserve invites every man to voluntarily step forward and take his place in one of the important units. Convenient training periods are available to meet the problem of every man and his job. Only a few hours a week is required and business obligations are rigidly respected. Canadians Urged to Make Maximum Contribution to War's Fourth Victory Loan

Streams of munitions, men, guns, airplanes and ships must flow to the fighting men of Canada and the United Nations to secure victory. The dollars of Canadians must be put to work to produce these munitions and other implements of war. The Fourth Victory Loan, to be launched late in April will give the Canadian people the opportunity to answer the call of their government for those dollars, and in that call the demand of her fighting men and the fighting men of the United Nations for the tools of Victory will be answered, Dr. M. M. MacOdrum, Ottawa, of the National War Finance Committee, stated at a luncheon meeting held Friday afternoon at the Macdonald hotel.

He was addressing members of the Edmonton and District War Finance Committee, and stressed the necessity for keen organization to make certain that the objective of the loan is achieved.

He said it would be the duty of war loan workers to place squarely before the people of Alberta the plight of the nation and the consequences that might flow from failure to provide the weapons for our fighting men.

He stressed the necessity of turning every available dollar from the purchase of civilian goods to swell the contributions to the Fourth Victory Loan. Every dollar restrained from the purchase of consumer goods is a dollar diverted to the nation's war effort, he said.

NEED NO URGING

Canadians do not need urging to buy Victory bonds, he continued, there is deep in the hearts of the Canadian people the determination to get this war over as quickly as possible, with the minimum of misery and loss of life.

At the head table were Mayor John W. Fry, representing the City of Edmonton, Hon. Solon Low, representing the province of Alberta; R. V. Price, Northern Alberta chairman, War Finance Committee, R. E. Staples, chairman Edmonton War Finance Committee; Dr. Robert Newton president, University of Alberta; Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., commandant, Edmonton garrison, and representatives of all the armeds services stationed in the city.

Introducing the speaker, Mr. Price, chairman of the meeting, said that in 30 days Canadians would be asked to subscribe to the limit of their ability to the fourth Victory loan. He predicted that the success of this loan would equal, if not exceed its predecessor. He said Canadians should be proud to be able to subscribe to this loan. In France, Holland, Belgium, Norway and other European countries they have not been able to subscribe to even a second loan.

"There is tremendous spending power in the pockets of the workers of Canada despite the heavy taxation imposts," Mr. Price stated, "and it is this spending power that must be rallied to the success of the Fourth Victory loan."

Workers in the loan campaign have the task to divert purchasing from civilian consumer goods so that every available dollar will be placed at the disposal of the government in purchases of Victory bonds and war savings certificates, Mr. Price stated.

NO SECOND PRIZE

"There is no second prize in this war. We are either the winners or the vanquished. To be the vanquished means the end of the liberties we all hold so dear. This means we must win. We on the home front can make that victory possible through our purchase of Victory bonds. It is our duty to see that the airplanes, tanks, guns, ships, munitions and above all the message to our fighting men that we are solidly behind them goes to them so that they can achieve victory.

Remember it is the country with the heaviest weight of armaments that will win the war. Your purchase of Victory bonds can bring that victory, he said.

Speaking for the National War Finance Committee, Dr. MacOdrum said Victory loans were put over because in the hearts of the Canadian people there was the determination to get this war over with as quickly as possible, with the minimum of misery and loss of life. They did not look on the success of any loan as a financial achievement, but they do recognize that defeat means and end of all our liberties, and our enslavement to a brutal conqueror.

He said it would be the duty of the War Finance committees throughout Canada to present faithfully to millions of Canadians an understanding of the need to purchase to the limit of their resources when the Victory loan campaign starts.

$1,100,000,000 NEEDED

The tremendous amount of $1,100,000,000 must be subscribed during the Fourth Victory loan. This is 11 times the amount of Canada's war budget, Dr. MacOdrum stated.

It means, he continued, that Canada will be spending at the rate of $15,000,000 daily to win this war. It means a contribution daily of $1.30 from every man, woman and child in Canada.

On the record of performance in the Third Victory loan Canadians have been investing in Victory bonds and war savings certificates to the extent of $800,000,000 annually. They must save more than double that this year to meet the nation's war requirements.

He said the dollars are in the country to meet the government's call to the patriotism of the people. There has been a tremendous increase in purchasing power, a tremendous rise in the national income. Industries have been developed, and are being developed in Canada in a manner undreamed of in the pre-war days.

This industrial expansion has given the people purchasing power, and that purchasing power must be directed from consumer goods to the victory commodity offered by the government, Victory bonds.

He said there was no easy way to win this war, neither would it be easy to put across the Victory loan. As the campaign progresses there must be an increasing appeal to new classes of investors. Large Canadian companies will continue to subscribe, but drain of corporation taxes is limiting their companies' capacity to participate as heavily as in previous loans.

INCREASE PURCHASES

This will mean, he said, that the ordinary investor will have to increase his purchases to a considerable degree.

It is estimated that nine out of 10 Canadians receive salaries of $2,500 or less and it is established that most of the increased salaries in the war years has gone to that class of worker. Three-quarters of the national income goes to them, Dr. MacOdrum stated, and to make the loan a success these modest income people and their modest saving capacity must be utilized to capacity in the loan.

He said that the government had every right to expect that the people whose incomes had increased through the nation's war effort to subscribe to the limit of their powers in the Victory loan.

Speaking in the broad sense agriculture has benefited greatly from the war effort. He made it clear that he was dealing with agriculture generally in Canada. This increase in prosperity should be reflected in Victory loan purchases by the agricultural communities. It would be a task of the local committee, conversant with the agricultural situation, to see that every available dollar went to victory.

SAVE EVERY DOLLAR

He urged that the purchase of civilian goods should be reduced to the minmum, and said that every dollar restrained from the purchase of civilian goods was a dollar saved for war production.

Streams of men, munitions, tanks, guns, airplanes and ships must go to the men of the Allied nations on the many battlefronts of the world, Dr. MacOdrum stated, and it will be the dollars of the Canadian workers, and farmers that will make that stream possible. He said it was not necessay to appeal to the patriotism of Canadians to subscribe to this loan. They knew their duty and could be expected to meet to the limit their nation's call.

In a great four-day battle the Russians killed 7,000 Germans, destroyed 140 tanks and 52 guns, after which the enemy fell back, and appears to have abandoned his offensive. If the Soviet forces can follow up their advantage and continue to push down toward Bryansk they will be in a fair way to making a junction with their forces southwest of Orel and drawing the loop completely around it.

Feed Men Forming New Organization

Initial steps in formation of an Alberta Feed Manufacturers Association were taken at Thursday night's meeting of Edmonton and district feed manufacturers when a provisional board was named to take up the proposal in other parts of the province.

The new organization is expected to become part of a Canadian Feed Manufacturers Association which was mooted in western Canada at a conference in Winnipeg last month when western feed manufacturers met to discuss feed manufacturers' problems.

The provisional board is composed of G. M. Cormie, chairman, A. C. Kirstine, secretary; directors, J. Russell Love of Edmonton District Co-operative, F. Chalmers of Canada Packers Limited, and William Hannah of Byers and Hannah Limited.

The board will exist until a permanent board representative of all sections can be selected.

Alberta May Supply Vital Drug to Allies

Through the hard work of Dr. A. W. Matthews, associate professor in the pharmacy department, University of Alberta, Alberta may supply the Allies with a much-needed drug, which formerly came from Central Europe.

Dr. Matthews has succeeded in growing belladonna, which is widely used to further certain secretions of the body, and by eye specialists to dilate the pupil of the eye. Officials of the drug company to which the drug was sent said that the sample grown here was of excellent quality and is of better appearance than the pre-war drug which was imported from Central Europe.

STARTED YEAR AGO

Dr. Matthews' investigation started about a year ago when drug companies had to start rationing belladonna. He leased a vacant half acre, and put in 5,000 plants in early June. For four months Dr. Matthews and his assistant, Mervy J. Huston, mothered the small, slow-growing plants along. The wet summer retarded their development. The plants stood the September frosts very well, and the harvest was made in early October by cutting off the above ground parts and tying them together in bundles.

These bundles were then strung over poles and taken to the drying shed, where they were dried and crushed, the most important part in the cultivation of vegetable drugs. The drugs were then weighed and the yield found to be 750 pounds to the acre. This figure compares favorably with a large research project undertaken under ideal conditions in the eastern United States.

Since the plant is a perennial one, Dr. Matthews intends to continue his work next year, when he hopes to get two or three harvests. He also hopes to expand a small plot of digitalis lanata, a variety of heart stimulant now widely used.

NEEDS SPECIAL CARE

Dr. Matthews cautioned Alberta farmers that "the basis of growing belladonna depends entirely upon hand labor, and very special care. The plant is definitely not adaptable to mass production, and with the shortage of labor growing worse every day, the planter's difficulties are bound to increase.

[illegible] it is, however, a paying proposition. However, if [illegible] were to return to its pre-war price, which was made on the basis of cheap labor made available in Central Europe, the effort would certainly not be worth the farmer's time or money.

Dr. Matthews and his assistant feel that if some of the drug which they have grown will return to fill the empty spaces on the shelves of western pharmacists their work will have been of some consequence.

Watch the '43 Fords go by!

THERE THEY GO. . . splitting the air with the roar of their powerful, driving engines! Not the streamlined automobiles of yesterday, nor yet the exciting new cars of tomorrow. These are the snub-nosed battle horses for today's war.

In the hands of Ford Test Drivers, they thunder down this "last mile" of a gruelling "Commando Course" for battle vehicles. Special tests under winter conditions prove their ability to plough through sub-zero snowfields. Rocky rides through roadless terrain and hub-deep sand prove they can take it in the scorching heat of desert fighting. Test after test proves these husky Canadian war machines are fighting-fit—before they roll away to add speed and striking power to a United Nations attack half way around the world.

Ford of Canada, the largest producer of military vehicles in the British Empire, is proud of the fact that these well-built, thoroughly-tested Canadian products are winning the "thumbs-up" approval of seasoned fighting men on all fronts.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

AS THE teams journey along the Allan Cup playoff trail, it becomes more and more obvious that it's a case of Ottawa Commandos against the field for the coveted old mug. And having disposed of Monteral R.C.A.F. last night, it looks very much like a canter the rest of the way.

Toronto R.C.A.F. of course must still be disposed of, but there appears to be no other real opposition in the East barring the way to the final. Out West, Winnipeg Bombers hold a big edge over Regina Army, for the Caps are now faced with the necessity of taking three in a row—a tall order in any man's league.

Calgary and Victoria Army squads look like an even bet, but none of the four western clubs still alive can measure up to the power-laden aggregation from the nation's capital. In fact the Commandos would be quite at home in the Stanley cup playoffs, perhaps even more so than at least two of the teams now engaged in that annual event.

COMMANDOS ROLLING

POSSESSING more potential power right from the start than any other club in the league, the Commandos evidently just dogged it along all season in the Quebec circuit, even having a struggle to keep out of fourth place.

But when the chips went down and playoff time rolled around the boys began to hit the ball. To many the ousting of Cornwall Army, leaders throughout most of the regular schedule appeared to be an upset, but the Commandos evidently had more trouble with Montreal R.C.A.F.

The team had always been well fortified for player material, but last night Bingo Kampman, former Toronto defence ace lined up with Ken Reardon and Al Barnes and so barring a terrific upset, all that is necessary now is to call in the carpenters and put up the shelf for the cup.

FOUR FROM EDMONTON

EDMONTON hockey fans have been following the fortunes of the Ottawa club with more than ordinary interest chiefly because of the local talent included in the personnel of the team.

Neil and Mac Colville, Ken Reardon and Jack McGill all learned their early hockey here and three of the four still make their homes in the city. The Colvilles of course were with New York Rangers before joining the army, while Reardon was on rearguard duty for Canadiens. Jack McGill broke in with Boston Bruins last year and finished in a blaze of glory.

The famous Colville-Shibicky-Colville line of the Rangers is functioning as usual, for Alex Shibicky is also with the club. Other N.H.L. players are Gordon Bruce from Boston and Gordon Poirier from the Canadiens. Ken Kilrea played with Detroit and Indianapolis. Syd Fenu is the gent who burnt up the Saskatchewan senior league last winter and Eddie Slowinski, Walter Murray and Al Barnes complete the squad.

E. Hill Counts 22 Points

Sterling High Wins 51-41 Over Local All-Star Cagers

The visitors led by E. Hill with a total of 22 points took the lead in the second quarter and were well deserving of their victory. The team travelled over 400 miles to reach the city.

Les Neilson was high point getter for the All-Stars with 16. Don Blue with 11, Bob Parr with five, Bob Aitken with four, Norm Bradshaw and Cliff McLeod with two each and Bill Mayson scoring on a free shot were the other counters for the losers.

G. Michelsen, who tallied 12, T. Pengilly seven and P. Proctor and D. Erickson with five each, accounted for the remainder of the winners' 51.

The game was close and hard fought throughout with a total of 22 fouls being called by Referees Morey LaVold and Pat DiNino, 15 of which went to the losers. The local All-Stars held a one-point edge in the first quarter when they out-counted Sterling 10-9, but were overcome in the second when the visitors chalked up 14 against 10 to take a 23-20 lead at half time.

Sterling added 15 in the third frame while the All-Stars could only hoop nine to take a comfortable lead which they held from that point.

With Hill getting all but one point in the final quarter for the winners the home team was outcounted 13-12 as they made a desperate effort to overcome Sterling.

Wally Moses Is Only Returning Chicago Fielder

FRENCH LICK, Ind., March 27.—(AP)—Chicago White Sox, plugged up with rookies after a drain of 24 men to the armed forces, seem destined to remain deep in the second division of the American League.

Manager Jimmy Dykes likes Texan Thruman Tucker, who clipped .313 for Fort Worth, for centre field; or Moose Solters, who clubbed over .300 for the Sox in 1940 before being beaned, spiked and generally bunged up in 1941.

Luke Appling will be at short.

"We have regulars Joe Kuhel at first and Don Kolloway at second—and in this boy Jimmy Grant I think we have found a third baseman," said Dykes.

Grant nicked .313 with St. Paul last year and played 12 games with the Sox later.

The pitching corps will include Bill Dietrich, Orval Grove, John Humphreys, Thorton Lee, Edgar Smith and Jake Wade—three southpaws and three right handers.

Paul Thompson Says He's Through

CHICAGO, March 27.—(AP)—Paul Thompson, manager of Chicago Black Hawks, has left for his Calgary home declaring he was through with hockey, but Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, club owner, believes he may change his mind.

"Paul was saddened by his failure to reach the Stanley Cup playoffs," McLaughlin said, "and declared he was through with managing and with hockey. I can't tell how Paul feels now, or if, indeed there will be hockey for anybody next season, but I always have, and always will have, great confidence in him as a manager. I am sure his depression will pass."

Saskatchewan Army Club Loses Second Semi-Final 4-2

'Peg Bombers Again Beat Regina Caps

Airmen Hold Upper Hand Throughout

WINNIPEG, March 27.—(CP) — Winnipeg R.C.A.F. Bombers made it two straight over Regina Army Capitals in the second game of their best-of-five western senior hockey semi-final last night when they defeated the Saskatchewan champions 4-2.

Bombers won the first game Wednesday in overtime 5-1. Third game will be played in Regina Monday.

The Manitoba champion Bombers ended the first period with a 2-1 lead. They equalized Regina scroing in the second to make it 3-2 and scored the only counter of the final period.

The Airmen held the upper hand throughout. Their style of firing the puck into the rink corner and then five men rushing into the defence zone, seemed to demoralize the Capitals.

The Regina team with a different style of play, kept PO. Harry Moroz, Bomber netminder, right on his toes on close-in plays.

Sgt. Reni Trudel scored the opening goal for Bombers followed by AC.2 Bill McGregor, LAC. Paul Platz and AC.2 Roy McBride. L.-Cpl. Red Tilson and Cpl. Murray Armstrong, netted for Regina.

The game opened cautiously with play slow. At 5.28 of the first period Trudel converted a pass from McBride to give the Airmen the lead. Less than three minutes later a three-man Bomber breakaway made it 2-0 when McGregor scored on a double pass from Trudel and McBride.

Regina's first goal came at the 14-minute mark when AC.2 Andy Branigan was penalized. With the man advantage, Caps staged power plays which were finally rewarded when Armstrong took a pass from Pte. Al Corbett to give Moroz no chance.

Midway in the second period, Tilson and Armstrong broke away from a Bomber ganging attack. As Armstrong hit the penalty shot line, he passed to Tilson who fired a shot past Moroz to make it 2-2.

• • •

Less than four minutes later, however, Bombers went into the lead again. AC.2 Andy Branigan barged his way through the Regina defence and passed right in front to Platz who made no mistake.

Winnipeg went on the defensive in the third period. Regina attacks were broken up at the defence time and again and when they did break through Moroz held the Regina sharpshooters off.

The only goal of the period came when McGregor stole a loose puck from Regina on a power play. He streaked down the ice, outskated the Regina back-checkers, and passed to McBride right in front of the goal to give the Regina goalie no chance.

Johnny Greco Scores Second 10-Round Decision Over Shans

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By CHARLES EDWARDS

TORONTO, March 27.—(CP)—United States hockey authorities were enthused by Mike Shabaga's six-goal performance in leading Philadelphia Falcons to 7-3 win over Boston Olympics in the Eastern United States Amateur League play-offs Wednesday night. They thought the Saskatoon boy might have set a record for goals in one game in high-class hockey.

Actually Mike didn't establish a record. Such scoring feats are not infrequent in class "A" junior and senior hockey in Canada. Only last week, for example Church Russell led Winnipeg Rangers to the Manitoba junior title with six goals as Rangers beat St. Boniface Athletics 12-6.

One of the greatest scoring displays was Frank McGee's 16 goals as the great Ottawa Silver Seven beat Dawson City 23-2 in a Stanley cup game in 1905. When Quebec Bulldogs beat Sydney Millionaires 14-3 in 1913, Joe Malone shot 10 goals. Dick Irvin, now coach of Montreal Canadiens' N.H.L. team, fired nine goals for Winnipeg Monarchs in a Canadian championship game against Toronto Rugby and Rowing Association March 25, 1914. That was in the old seven-man game with all players going the full 60 minutes without substitution.

In any event, Shabaga's performance was sensational. Mike was a member of the fine Saskatoon Quakers junior team which lost out in 1941 to Winnipeg Rangers, who subsequently won the Memorial cup. Another member of that Saskatoon team was Harry Watson, now with Detroit Red Wings.

By SIDNEY GRUSON

NEW YORK, March 27.—(CP)—Piston-fisted Johnny Greco, sights adjusted squarely on the worlds lightweight boxing championship, hammered out his second straight 10-round decision over California Cleo Shans in another torrid bout in Madison Square Garden last night. Greco weighed 135 pounds, Shans 133.

Greco, Canadian army private from Montreal, made his first decision stick by beating the Los Angeles negro with a flock of hard rights that drove Shans to the ropes time after time, his knees buckling. But the only time he went down it was from a straight, hard left to the face in the third round.

The decision was unanimous on the part of the Referee Frank Fulton and the two judges and on The Canadian Press scorecard Greco won six rounds with one even and Shans the other three.

Lured by the 20-year-old Greco's brilliant showing in his first Madison Square Garden main bout just a month ago, 15,011 fans poured $47,214 into the till to watch the slugfest last night. They weren't disappointed either.

This was Greco's 20th straight triumph and easily his most impressive although he was unable to knock out the sturdy Shans.

There were a few seconds in which it seemed Greco could land enough blows to batter Shans to the floor for keeps.

He might have done it, too, if he hadn't hurt his left hand in the third round and been forced to favor it a bit through the late rounds.

Greco probably earned a match against Beau Jack, recognized by the New York Athletic Commission as the lightweight titleholder. Providing Canadian army authorities are willing and Jack gets past Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia in a title fight May 14, Greco and Jack may perform outdoors in one of the ball parks this coming June.

Greco had a private rooting section of a dozen Canadian army officers and men including Lt.-Col. A. G. White, sports director for military district No. 4 and Greco's commanding officer. Promoter Mike Jacobs guaranteed the Canadian army athletic fund $5,000 from last night's receipts.

Proposed Fight With Louis Off

HOLLYWOOD, March 27.—(AP)—There will be no fight between the Argentine champion, Albert Lovell, and Joe Louis, world heavyweight champion, an army officer indicated yesterday.

Maj.-Gen. Irving J. Phillipson, director of army emergency relief, and currently Joe's commanding officer, said today, in reply to Luis Angel Firpo's statement in Buenos Aires last night that Lovell and Louis would fight May 5:

"It is my belief that such an event would be impossible, as I understand it would be contrary to war department policy."

Louis is here appearing in the film, "This is the Army."

Alberta Title at Stake

Raymond Union Jacks Play "M" Depot Tonight

RAYMOND UNION JACKS will face rather a tough assignment at the Arena tonight as they carry a 23-point deficit into the second of the two-game series with No. 3 "M" Depot Red Devils for the Alberta basketball championship.

The game starts at 8:30, but there will be a preliminary exhibition commencing at 7:30, with Starlets and Bissell of the City Girls' League the opposing teams.

The R.C.A.F. quintet took the first of the total-point playoff on Thursday night by a score of 67-44. The winner of the provincial title will proceed to the next round of the Dominion playdowns and it is understood that an Air Force team at Vancouver will be the opponents for the Albertans when they invade British Columbia.

Despite the fact that the Jacks have a big handicap to overcome, their supporters claim they were off their usual game on Thursday and it was of course quite obvious that their shooting was below par. In the third quarter however, they rallied to outscore the Airmen 18-13 and midway through the session counted 11 successive points without permitting a reply from "M" Depot.

The teams will line up the same as for the first game. Raymond will have Don Nilsson at centre as usual and although Don has been in the front rank of basketball players ever since 1927, he is still a very fine player. Butler Nalder, Robert Dunlop, Doral Stone, Fred Turner, Leonard Rolfson and Alma Evans are the other members of the team.

"Busher" Jackson and Jim Bardsley, both of whom have played on Dominion championship squads at the coast will be with "M" Depot and so will Pete Buna who collected 15 points on Thursday night.

Others with the Red Devils are John Kaminsky, who scored 12 points in the first game, Ellery Gill, Don Gray, Alma Baker, Dale Maine and Bruce Fisher.

Neil Colville Scores Three

Ottawa Commandos Capture Quebec Senior Hockey Title

MONTREAL, March 27.—(CP)—Ottawa Commandos defeated Montreal R.C.A.F. 6-2 last night to capture the Quebec Senior Hockey League championship and the Quebec senior hockey crown. They now enter the eastern Canada semi-final for the dominion championship and the Allan cup against Toronto R.C.A.F.

Pte. Neil Colville and Lieut. Gordon Poirier were the stars, scoring all their team's goals to beat the Airmen, with three each showing in the summaries for the high-scoring forwards.

Action was crowded into the second period with the Air Force building up a 2-0 lead before the soldiers started their scoring spree. Sgt. Allison MacNichol collected the first, while Poirier was in the penalty box. MacNichol scored on a pass from AC.2 Frank Eddolls and AC.2 Jim Haggarty after the Flyers had set up a heavy barrage around the Ottawa goal.

Then Pte. Kenny Reardon drew a penalty and the Flyers again crowded around the Ottawa goal. In one of their advances AC.2 Kenny Mosdell and Spr. Louis St. Denis drew penalties for high sticking. Mosdell was sent to the box while a minor penalty shot was given against St. Denis, the Ottawa goaler. AC.2 Lester Brennan took the shot and scored with a hard drive from the red line.

However, Neil Colville thought that Brennan had crossed the line and protested to the officials but the goal was allowed. Colville worked off his temper by racing through the Montreal defence and scoring unassisted against AC.2 Claude Bourque. The goal followed Brennan's shot by 20 seconds.

With both teams back at full strength, Poirier took a long shot from the left flank on a pass from Pte. Kenny Kilrea and the puck hit Bourque's pad and rolled into the net. Before the period closed, Poirier put the Commandos two goals ahead when he sank a pass from Barnes.

Poirier and Kilrea combined in the closing frame to put the Commandos still further in the lead and in the 15th minute of the frame with Brennan serving a penalty, Neil Colville scored unassisted.

Cpl. Bingo Kampman, former Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman, appeared with the Commandos for the first time.

Manager

Jimmy Smith was re-appointed manager of the annual Dominion Day celebration at last night's meeting of the South Side Business Men's Association. This marks the 26th successive time that Jimmy has been named to guide the destinies of this yearly event. A full program of sports and races are planned and the usual carnival will also be included.

Thompson Sets 45-Yard Record

CLEVELAND, March 27.—(AP)—Herb Thompson of Jersey City, United States indoor sprint champion, established a world's indoor record for the 45-yard dash in the Knights of Columbus games at the arena last night.

His time of 4.8 seconds clipped one-tenth of a second off the mark set by Percy Williams of Vancouver Feb. 12, 1929. Thompson beat out Dave Trepanier of Ohio State University.

The "Toy Bulldog" was clocked at eight minutes, 50 seconds, one-tenth of a second faster than his previous mark.

In making track history, Rice won his 64th consecutive race. He lapped the other two contestants, Glen Masten of Colgate, the inter-collegiate champion, and Dave Williams of Georgetown. Masten finished second with Williams trailing the field.

"He's the type who holds in the clinches! You need a referee when you go out with him!"

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

NEW YORK, March 27.—Ancient Joe Woodman, who managed the great Sam Langford for 19 years, stood at the ringside in Stillman's gymnasium and watched his young negro lightweight, Ike Williams, with all the proud enthusiasm his "Boston Tar Baby" must have evoked 40 years ago.

The gymnasium was jammed with fighters, spectators, boxing writers, and handlers. It was a big day, and the "jernt was jumping" as Henry Armstrong, Beau Jack, Pte. Johnny Greco, Cleo Shans, and others went through their paces.

As young Williams sparred with a heavier negro mate in one of the gym's two rings, almost unnoticed, the other ring commanded almost everyone's attention. In that roped square, the bevy of spectators was busy with the more noted gladiators.

WILLIAMS COMING UP

OLD Joe Woodman pushed his grey hat back on his silver-streaked thatch and peered through his horn-rimmed spectacles at the hurly-burly. He said, "Next year Ike Williams will be over in that other ring, with the spectators swarming around him. That's the boxing game for you. Ike working today with nobody watchin', but in a year or so a nationally-known fighter with his name on everybody's lips and his picture in all the papers. Those two rings there tell the story of the fight game."

Why was Woodman, after handling pugilists for more than half a century, convinced that slender young Williams of Trenton, N.J., would become lightweight champion?

Woodman said, "This Williams kid can't miss. He's got everything. When I say that, I speak as an expert—if experience can make a man an expert. At 19, he's the greatest natural all-round fighter I ever saw. He's a splendid boxer—can feint and move properly on his feet, which few modern pugs can do. And he's a great puncher. He has knocked out 14 men in his 17 professional fights. He lost but once, when as a featherweight, he dropped a decision to Freddy Archer, a welterweight."

POPULAR IN PHILADELPHIA

WE didn't remember seeing Williams before, although he licked Jerry Morre in a preliminary at Madison Square Garden early last month. But we did remember the tremendous ovation the name of Ike Williams was given at Philadelphia's convention hall last Tuesday night—before the Armstrong-Tribuani bouts—when the announcer disclosed that Williams would fight soon on another Philadelphia card.

"Yes," said Woodman, "Ike is a prime favorite with Philadelphia fans. They love him. And the fans of Cleveland have a lot of respect for him too. Do you know what Ike did? He knocked out Sammy Daniels at Philadelphia on the night of Feb. 22, then grabbed a plane to Cleveland, where on the night of Feb. 23, he knocked out Bobby McQuillan. Two kayoes within 24 hours in cities more than 500 miles apart."

Incidentally, we asked, where is old Sam Langford now? Woodman said Langford, nearly blind, is a watchman at a New York municipal lodging house. He concluded, "I managed Sam for 19 years. I wanted him to quit fighting and gave up his contract. But he kept on for about seven more years. He had plenty of money when I gave him up. But he lost his money later and almost lost his sight because he wouldn't listen to the advice of Joe Woodman, his best friend."

The number of unmarried women between 30 and 50 years of age is stated to be the highest ever reached, due in a great part to the losses of manpower in World War I.

Acquire Eddie Miller

Cincinnati Expects to Have Improved Ball Team

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 27.—(AP)—Cincinnati Reds this year should be a solidly improved ball club, with shortstop Eddie Miller the kingpin in a tightened infield setup.

The Reds, who finished fourth last year by breaking even in 152 games and playing two ties, acquired Miller from Boston Braves during the winter, and Manager Bill McKechnie thinks he will help the team considerably.

"He's a great team player," the Deacon said Friday. "Eddie should make the difference between our fair club of last year and a good team this season. Miller is the kind of boy who runs the infield, telling the others where to play, and sets a good example by his own performances.

"We're still looking for outfielders, however."

Reds have undergone heavy workouts every day. Each starts with an hour and a half session with Bill Miller, the Tulsa muscle expert, who achieves his aim not by formal calisthenics or rubbing-down ministrations, but by mass exercises tending to make the boys utterly relax.

Eddie Miller will guard the left side of the infield along with Bert Haas.

Linus Frey and Frank McCormick, the leagues' most valuable player in 1940, will complete the infield at second and first. Ray Mueller who saw previous major league service with Boston and Pittsburgh, is slated to be the No. 1 catcher, succeeding Ray Lamanno, who is in the navy.

With Gerald Walker a holdout, Mike McCormick, Max Marshall and Frank Kelleher are the outfield nominees.

The pitching department is where the Reds may rise and shine this campaign. Veterans like Bucky Walters Ray Starr, Johnny Vander Meer, Elmer Riddle and Joe Beggs are back.

St. Patrick's To Meet Generals

OTTAWA, March 27.—(CP)—St. Patrick's College swamped Cardinal, Ont., juniors 17-4 in the second game of their best-of-three Ottawa district hockey league series here last night and won the right to advance into the Memorial Cup play-offs against Oshawa Generals, Ontario Hockey Association champions, by taking the series 2-0 in games.

Starlets Win Twice In Girls' Hoop Playoffs

Starlets gained four points by chalking up two victories in the first round-robin series for the City Girls' Basketball League championship played in the Y.W. gym Friday night. Bissell won two points and Y.W.C.A. were unable to get any.

The Bissell club defeated Y 21-20 in the first game. Starlets beat Y.W. 15-7 in the second and then edged-out Bissell 13-12 in the third. A winning team was given two points.

Mary Peden, playing under protest was the high scorer of the night with 12 counters for Bissell, getting four and eight against Starlets and Y.W. respectively.

Margaret LeLacheur with 11, scoring five against Bissell and six while playing Y led Starlets to their two victories. Francis Gordon with six in her two games was the leading scorer for the last place team.

In the first contest Bissell took a one-point lead against Y.W.C.A. in the first half by out-counting their rivals 11-10 and then holding their own in the second while both teams chalked up an even 10.

The Starlets had very little trouble in downing the Y.W. club in the second game by scoring eight while the losers could only get five in the first half and out-hooping the Y girls 7-2 in the second to gain their 15-7 victory.

The third contest was close and saw Bissell take a lead in the first half, only to have the Starlets come back in the last 10 minutes to count four while Bissell was held to only one field basket.

Line-ups:

Y.W.C.A. — Francis Gordon 6, Francis Storey 2, Irene McKillop 5, Ada Forbes 6, Tony Grenier 5, Leona Miller 4.

Starlets—Dot Bolander 2, Connie Strachan 4, Gladys Limming, Denise Calloway, Margaret LeLacheur 11, May Pringle 4, Dot McCormick, Shirley Thompson 4, Vera Hole, Muriel Duke 3.

Bissell—Bella Riddle, Gwen Riddle 8, Dot Myers 8, Mary Peden 12, Dot Chandler, Jean Chandler 2, Dot Quilley, Eleanor Robertson 2.

Official—Pete Danylowich.

Scorer—Margaret Gray.

Hurler Signs

PITTSBURGH, March 27.—(AP) Max Butcher, big right-handed pitcher of Pittsburgh Pirates, agreed to terms Friday and will leave Sunday for training camp at Muncie, Ind. President William E. Benswanger announced.

Benswanger also disclosed that Maurice van Robays, hard-hitting outfielder, had signed his 1943 contract at camp.

Tennis Days For Helen Wills Over

MANHATTAN, Kas., March 27.—(AP)—The racquet-wielding right hand that Mrs. Helen Wills Roark used to smash tennis opponents was in bandages Friday and the famous court star may never play again.

Several bones were removed from the hand in an operation a week ago at Fort Riley, Kas., where Lieut. Adrian Roark, husband of the former National and Wembledon champion, is stationed.

Attending physicians said she may never regain complete use of the hand.

Mrs. Roark's hand was severely injured Jan. 14 in Junction City, Kas., when she attempted to stop a fight between her German shepherd and another dog. Bone infection necessitated the operation.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

By REV. D. H. LAMB, B.A., B.D.

Calvary Baptist Church, Weyburn, Sask.

"And a New Earth"

"STATE it in what form you will, the heavenly precedes the earthly, and the earthly is but our attempt to take what we believe is the City of God and make out of it the City of Man." This statement by Dr. Edwin Lewis says that our ideal is the heavenly ideal, that we must build our earth out of our heaven, that the earth we desire is but the expression of the heaven in which we believe. That, having caught a vision of the heavenly, we may bring that to pass in the earthly. And, further, that only by and through the power that comes from heaven can the earth become new.

In the Revelation, we have a picture of what the new world might be like: it is a picture of complete sociability. No idealist could long for more. It is a picture of the Kingdom of God and the Kingdom of Man. It is a city of men in which all strivings have ceased, all selfishness and greed have passed. All are one in Christ Jesus. There is neither Greek nor Jew, barbarian, Scythian, bondman, freeman. It is the picture of that perfect society wherein all men dwell together in righteousness and peace. It is a livable society.

The Christian witness down through the years has been that without the hope of universal brotherhood such a society will never become a reality. That witness goes further and says that a 'livable society' is dependent upon a 'lovable society.' This, in turn, is possible only as individuals enjoy an intimate, personal relationship with Jesus Christ. No man-made scheme for the social, economic or political betterment of man can get at the root of the fundamental human need. "The problem of man is not primarily an economic or political problem. It is finally the problem of the meaning for his life in the face of sin and suffering and death." Something must happen inside a man, something transitional, something that will revolutionize the whole outlook of his life. When Jesus spoke of this need of change, he used the word metanoia which means 'change of mind.' There is every indication that this 'change of mind' will have to come in a mighty way if men are to change their 'ego-ness' into 'other-ness' and love is the only power in the world able to do that.

We look for a more livable society and that is right. We look, too, for a more lovable society and that, too, is right. The first will come to pass only as the second is made a reality. Men and women, redeemed sons of God, are the only light in a darkened world, the bright and morning star shining unto a perfect day.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Rev. D. H. Lamb of Weyburn, Sask., who contributed this message, will be Guest Preacher at First Baptist Church, Edmonton, tomorrow.

Guest Preacher

The Rev. D. H. Lamb, B.A., B.D., minister of Calvary Baptist church, Weyburn, Sask., who will participate in the Preaching Mission, March 28 to April 2, at First Baptist church. He will be the guest preacher at the morning and evening services on Sunday.

Young People's Luther League will have charge of the Sunday evening service at Central Lutheran church. The Rev. Milton Johnson, pastor, will speak on "A Sermon Which Christ Preached" at the morning service.

The British and Foreign Bible Society issues an appeal for gifts to enable that organization to carry on a very essential service. These can be sent through the local branch or to the Bible House, 9939 Jasper avenue, Edmonton.

"Reality" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at all Christian Science Churches on Sunday. The Golden Text is I Corinthians 2:9. One of the Scriptural citations is "Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer" (Psalms 19:14). One of the corelative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is "The one Mind, God, contains no mortal opinions. All that is real is included in this immortal Mind" (p. 399).

"The Cross of Limitation" is the subject at the morning service of Wesley United church on Sunday, while the evening service topic will be "Young People and Today's Opportunity." Interdenominational Young People's Union members will be in attendance.

The Rev G. R. Dawe, B.Th., will preach at both services Sunday at Norwood Regular Baptist church. In the morning he will preach on "Raging Nations and a Laughing God" and in the evening he will speak on "On Trial at the Bar of Religion," being the second in a series entitled "The Trial of Christ."

The British and Foreign Bible Society

From the time of the outbreak of the present global war up to the present, has seized the opportunity of the hour . . .

(1) to present New Testaments to all on Active Service with H.M. Forces, men and women alike.

(2) to supply the Scriptures in required speech for prison and internment camps.

To all who realize the moral and spiritual issues of the present conflict the Society's appeal will ever require sacrificial support to enable it to carry on such essential service. Gifts can be sent through the local Branch or to:

Wallace McClean, chaplain No. 4 I.T.S. On Sunday morning, April 4, the guest speaker will be the Rev. Gregory Vlastos, Ph.D., professor of Queen's university and now in the chaplaincy of the R.C.A.F.

In every major and minor war since 1804, the British and Foreign Bible Society or its sister organizations have assisted the armed and auxiliary forces of friend and foe alike to obtain copies of the Scriptures. In the present conflict this work continues and anyone on active service can be supplied with a copy upon application to the chaplains. The Red Cross Society has gladly accepted the society's offer to be responsible for supplying the Scriptures to Canadian prisoners of war when these can be sent overseas.

Opening services in Metropolitan United church will continue over Sunday, with the Very Rev. Dr. A. S. Tuttle, principal of St. Stephen's college, as guest speaker, and Flt.-Sgt. Malcolm Lange, guest soloist. The Rev. Dr. Murdoch MacKinnon of Robertson church will preach at the evening service. Dr. Robert Newton president of the University of Alberta will read the scripture, with The Rev. A. D. Miller, principal-elect of St. Stephen's college assisting at the service. Harold Sheppard will be soloist.

Two young men of Knox United church congregation who were recently ordained into the ministry will be special guests at the morning service on Sunday. They are the Rev. Gerald M. Hutchinson, B.A., who has accepted appointment as general secretary of the Student Christian Movement for Canada, and the Rev. J. Donald Purves-Smith who is accepting appointment to a pastoral charge in Alberta. They will assist in conducting the morning service.

Stormy Session in House on Increased Teachers' Pay

Issue Debated 3 Hours As Minimum $900 Rate Meets Stiff Opposition

A government bill which would increase minimum salaries of school teachers from $840 per year to $900 per year was given a stormy passage through the legislative committee of the whole Friday, touching off a three-hour debate and giving rise to three separate amendments, two of which were defeated, and one ruled out of order.

Debate on the contentious issue commenced at 5 o'clock, and at 6 the house arose for a two-hour recess, convening at 8 o'clock to continue discussion of the salary-raising until almost 10 o'clock.

The first amendment to the bill, moved by George MacLachlan, Independent whip, Pembina, broke government ranks on a standing vote.

The amendment would have set the minimum salary of teachers at $70 per month, with a $5 cost-of-living bonus added, making a total of $900 per year.

AMENDMENT LOST

Of the treasury benches, Hon. D. B. MacMillan, minister of agriculture, voted for the amendment, and Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secretary and minister of trade and industry, and Premier William Aberhart voted against the amendment. Absent from the treasury benches when the vote was taken were Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer, Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health.

Third Social Credit member voting for Mr. MacLachlan's motion was C. E. Gerhart, Coronation, Social Credit whip.

The opposition side of the house voted solidly for the motion, with the exception of four

Ninety-Three Bulls Entered In Annual Sale

Ninety-three pure bred bulls have been entered in the 32nd annual sale of pure bred bulls sponsored by the Edmonton Exhibition Association, it was announced Saturday by Charles E. Wilson, manager of the association. The sale will be held on Thursday, April 8, at the Exhibition grounds.

Entries have been received from as far north as St. Paul, and east to Hardisty, and south to Ponoka. Some of the animals entered are from the barns of leading livestock breeders in central and northern Alberta.

Judging of the entries will start on April 8, at 9:30 a.m. and the sale at 1:30 p.m. J. W. Durno, Calgary, and Don Ball, Edmonton, are the auctioneers.

Special prizes are being offered by the Canadian Shorthorn Association, and the Alberta Hereford Association for the champion and reserve champion bulls in the sale.

Mr. Wilson reported that entries for the spring show are coming in very satisfactorily with increases recorded in practically every class.

Two Fire Alarms

City fire department had two runs during Friday.

At 5:34 p.m. a fire in the garbage chute at the Alexandra block, 10181 100A street, was extinguished.

At 10:20 a chimney fire at the home of Mrs. E. Tanner, 11210 132 avenue, brought equipment from No. 8 hall.

Optimists Plan Banquet, Dance For Next Week

Installation of newly-elected officers of the Optimist Club of Edmonton, will take place at the Corona hotel on Friday, April 2 it was announced Saturday by Louis LeFleche, club president. The installation ceremony will be in charge of R. Carter Tucker of Kansas City, Mo., who will be accompanied here by Mrs. Tucker.

Mr. Tucker, a prominent Kansas City attorney, is a past commander of the Missouri American Legion and is now Commissioner of the United States Citizens' Corps of the Kansas City Civilian Defence Council. He has long been prominently identified in the civic affairs of his community and was recently named honorary sponsor of the Kansas City Eagle Scout class.

"We feel highly honored in having our international president speak before our members," Mr. LeFleche said, "as he is regarded as an outstanding speaker."

SERVICE CLUB

Mr. LeFleche explained that Optimist International is a service club organization with members in the principal cities of the United States, Canada and Porto Rico. Its two chief objects are to promote a constructive spirit of optimism and to provide aid and leadership to youth everywhere in line with its slogan, "Friend of the Boy."

"Each club is urged to engage in some form of boys' work but is left free to adopt any type of program in keeping with the needs of its particular community," Mr. LeFleche pointed out, adding that during the last administrative year, Optimist clubs aided approximately 70,000 boys by operating summer camps, forming Junior Optimist clubs, providing medical and dental care and co-operating with other youth-serving agencies.

House Advances Bill Extending Holiday Season

Given second reading and committee discussion in the legislature Friday was Premier Aberhart's bill extending school holidays to the 10th of October (in 1943), which will permit school students to help in the harvesting this fall. The bill is now ready for third reading.

In discussion on the bill, it was suggested by J. C. Mahaffy, K.C., Calgary, Independent house leader, and George MacLachlan, Independent whip, that the junior children in the school would be of no help on the farms. They both asked if some provision could be made to take this situation into account.

CONFUSION RESULT

Premier Aberhart said if some grades were exempted by the bill, a "conglomeration" that couldn't be straightened out would result. "It would add expense and cause trouble, and school grants would have to be changed," Mr. Aberhart said.

If the bill was considered unsatisfactory in operation this year, he added, a year from today any adjustments that are necessary will be made.

The premier continued to say that in his opinion once the proposed change was tried we would never go back to the old system. "An agricultural country like this deserves to have children, of no matter what age help their parents on the farm."

Keeping some children in school, and others out, would mean only a month's holiday for the teachers, or it would require a shift of teachers, Mr. Aberhart explained.

Another feature of the system that would keep some children in school, he added would be that parents could only enjoy a one-month's holiday.

UNANIMOUS SUGGESTION

The bill arose from a unanimous suggestion of the consultative committee on agricultural services, Hon. D. B. MacMillan, minister of agriculture, told the house. The consultative committee represents all Alberta farm organizations several educational bodies, and agriculture officials of the government.

The sum of $25.30 was raised by school children at Norwood school for the Junior Red Cross War Fund, by means of a "fish pond," held March 26. "Fishing licenses" were issued to each "fisherman," and much fun and hilarity resulted over the opening of "catches." The small boys of the school indulged in an orgy of "swapping" over their fishermen's luck, with evidently satisfactory results to all concerned.

Arrives Overseas

Pilot Officer H. Keith Smeltzer, a resident of Edmonton since 1928, has arrived overseas, according to word received by his father, Gordon Smeltzer, 10237 125 street. PO. Smeltzer was born in Morrin on March 5, 1922. Coming to Edmonton in 1928, he was educated at Oliver Public school and Westglen High school. He joined the R.C.A.F. in January, 1942, training in Ontario and Montreal, and received his wings and commission on Feb. 9 last. PO. Smeltzer has two sisters living at home, Helen and Jeanne. He recently spent a short leave here before going overseas.

Getting Around

Jack DeLong

Bruce Hutchison, whose articles on matters of current import to Canadians often appear in The Edmonton Bulletin, comes to bat in the current issue of MacLean's Magazine with an article entitled, "Pie In the Sky, Canadian Style."

Hutchison, who is noted for his highly-developed sense of the essentials contained in any political speech, or controversial subject matter that arises concerning modern trends in industry and economics, berates our old friends the politicians, for promising a pie in the sky prosperity after the war, without being the least bit specific concerning details.

And Mr. Hutchison plays no favorites. He turns his caustic pen loose on the accredited spokesmen for every Canadian political party from socialist to ultra-Progressive Conservative.

He starts off by observing that "pie in the sky" has become practical politics in Canada. Continuing, he writes, that many people have become so accustomed to great expectations that they hardly stop to consider the recent extraordinary pledges of the politicians. He declares we must force the politicians to go into detail concerning this pie [illegible]

THE QUESTION

THE ANSWERS

FRED HARRISON, carpenter: I guess the government is willing that the homes should be built here, but there seems to be some misunderstanding at present that should easily be ironed out.

• • •

PERCY TALMADGE, bookkeeper: If the urgent need is a spur to the government to build these homes they will be erected this year. The housing situation here is terrible. Try and find a place to live. I understand there are more than 500 people that are unable to find suitable accommodation in Edmonton.

• • •

HARRY FERGUSON, electrical worker: I am confident that a meeting in person between representatives of the city and Wartime Housing Ltd., will result in the 200 homes being set up here this summer.

Fire Truck, Car Collide in Street

A collision between a fire truck and a car on 127 avenue, between 114 and 115 streets, at 11 p.m. Friday, resulted in considerable damage to the fire truck.

Capt. W. Young, of No. 8 fire hall, reported to police he was driving west on 127 avenue to a chimney fire, when his truck was sideswiped by a car driven by Gus Radis of the Millet district.

The fire truck was damaged on the left rear fender, rear step, hand pump and frame. An angle iron from the fire truck punched a hole through a tire on the Radis car.

The latter claimed he lost control of his car just before the crash when his auto struck a hole in the street. He agreed to pay for the damages.

Ainlay States Stand He Takes On Juke Boxes

Ald. H. D. Ainlay on Saturday denied that at any time he had criticized the type of music played by juke boxes or that he stated he had any intention of trying to eliminate them.

He made the following [illegible] regarding his stand on [illegible] boxes.

"I have not before this ma[illegible] statement, public[illegible] in regard to the Juke Boxes because I had no motion be[illegible] city council. There has been a lot of printer's ink wasted on a subject which is of such minor importance in the life of [illegible] country while engaged in a great struggle. It is merely one of those routine matters which comes up in the course of city business. I a[illegible] as surprised a[illegible] amount of pu[illegible] matter especia[illegible] material [illegible] way quote anything which I have said on the subject."

DENIES CRITICISM

First of a[illegible] I [illegible] phatically deny that at any time I criticized the type of music played by these machines. Second[illegible] I would like to also deny that I ever stated that I had any intention of trying to eliminate the use of these machines. Any statement to the contrary has been entirely due to someone's imagination.

"There are only two reasons for a license. They are for the purpose of revenue and for regulation. In this case the license fee of one dollar per year and the absence of regulations governing operation does neither. Any opinion which I have expressed is embodied in my resolution at present before the council. It calls for a reasonable license fee for this very profitable business and proper regulations as to their operation. If the owners of these machines had properly regulated them in the first place the question might not have come up at all. If the council endorses my motion or a similar one the matter will be closed as far as I am concerned. I have had, and w[illegible] have, much more important matters before council for consideration."

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Cosmic Urge to Woman Is First in Marriage

To Learn After Marriage That Man Only Loved With Lukewarm Fervor, Means Unhappiness For All Concerned

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a man of 27 and [illegible] a few months ago I intended to stay single the balance of my life, but now I have met a girl who has attracted me strangely. Maybe [illegible] love, only if it is I never thought that love was like this. Just a companionableness. Then I found out that she cared deeply for me, but that she is engaged to another man who can give her all the luxuries that I can't and never will be able to give her.

Now, suddenly, I seem to care quite terribly for her, but I can't decide if it is because I really love her, or because she belongs to someone else that I want her. Another angle is my extreme selfishness that makes me feel that I might chafe under the restrictions that married life naturally imposes. The girl has put off her marriage for a year or so that we might try to decide what is best to do. Can you see any solution to the problem? I swear that I am just going round in circles.

TOM D.

Answer: [illegible] Tom, is to keep going any way that doesn't lead to the altar, for evidently you have only a platonic affection for the girl, and that isn't enough to marry on, especially when you haven't anything to offer her but love in exchange for all that the other man can give her.

If you were overwhelmingly, passionately in love with her that would compensate for the fine establishment, the ease and luxury that she would sacrifice for you, but when she found out, as a [illegible] you only had a lukewarm liking for her, she would feel that she had made a pretty bad [illegible]

If a fresh milk is being used change to one of the processed milks. If this does not show an improvement then try goat's milk and if the condition remains the same, then try some food whose basis is soy beans. Act upon the conclusion that there must be something in the food offered so personally distasteful or offending to the small individual he would jeopardize his very existence rather than accept it.

As individuals we differ greatly in what we can eat with enjoyment and profit. If some children are born with a sensitivity toward milks so persistent as to make them almost impossible to feed, it would seem wise to omit the milks and try what other foods would do for them.

How often have you heard a friend say: "I have a splitting headache" and promptly proffered a couple of your favorite tablets which "always do the trick"? It is not my intention to deliberate today on the virtues or otherwise of tablets and so called pain killers, but rather explain some of the reasons for the splitting heads which cause them to be taken.

If there is a headache, then there is a cause for it and the cause is often far removed from the head itself. Sometimes the sufferer is aware of the cause, especially if it can be traced to [illegible] after the night [illegible] However, in my experience headaches often are associated with [illegible] cause the headaches to [illegible] It is [illegible] a common fact to [illegible] that a patient has suffered for years from severe headaches from an unknown cause and after having an examination made of the eyes a slight error of refraction was found to be the causative factor. Bread Is Palatable With Tasty Spread

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Bread, especially wholegrained, is a very important source of protein in these days of restricted meat supplies. But a good spread is needed to make bread go down pleasantly. When butter is scarce, try these.

WARTIME BUTTER SPREAD

(Yield—2 pounds)

Allow one pound margarine to come to room temperature, add coloring and mix with a kneading motion until color is evenly distributed. Add one pound butter which has been allowed to come to room temperature [illegible] margarine until well blended. Pack in mold and chill.

EVAPORATED MILK BUTTER SPREAD

(Yield [illegible])

Allow one pound [illegible] margarine to come to room temperature. Cream thoroughly, use electric beater, if available. Add two cups evaporated milk a small amount at a time, beating continuously until all milk is absorbed. Pack in mold [illegible]

For a wholesome dessert with party touch, try this wartime specialty.

HONEY ICE CREAM

Beat thoroughly chilled evaporated milk to consistency of soft custard. Fold in honey and grated rind. Freeze in refrigerator with control set at coldest [illegible] ice cream is set but not hard. Remove to bowl and beat with electric or rotary beater until smooth. Return to refrigerator, set control at normal and allow to remain until firm.

Monday's Menu

BREAKFAST: Whole oranges, dry cereal, wholewheat toast, fortified margarine or butter spread, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Split pea soup with wholewheat croutons, rye bread, special spread, apple and celery salad, tea, milk.

Jacobs-Ball Wedding Held Home Service

The Rev. D. K. Allan, of Tofield officiated at the marriage early Friday evening, of June Alice, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Ball, of Edmonton, and Maurice Jacobs, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Jacobs, also of this city. The two were married at the home of the bride's parents, 11164 97 street beneath an archway in the drawing room. Flowers in a variety of spring hues were arranged throughout.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a two-piece suit of sky blue wool with accessories of sailor blue and corsage of roses to contrast.

Aunt of the bride, Mrs. J. G. Allan, was matron-of-honor, and wore tan brown, an afternoon ensemble, with beige accessories and corsage of talisman roses.

Best man was Howard Rattenbury, and during the signing of the register Miss Louise Chadwick sang "Because," and Miss Florence Lane played the piano.

A reception was held immediately following at the Corona hotel for 60 guests. Receiving with the wedding party were Mrs. Ball and Mrs. Jacobs. The former was smart in a frock of navy, with accessories to match and corsage of carnations. Mrs. Jacobs wore an all-navy ensemble, with carnations pinned at her shoulder.

The wedding table, set with a crisp white cloth, was colorful with bouquets of spring flowers in a variety of hues. A three-tiered wedding cake formed the centrepiece.

The couple will take up residence in Edmonton temporarily.

Church Women Plan Meeting

Out-of-town presidents and delegates attending the 29th annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada, to be held April 6, 7 and 8, in All Saints' Cathedral and parish hall, have been invited to a reception at Bishop W. F. Barfoot's residence, 131 street and Stony Plain Road at 8 p.m. the first day of the convention.

Also highlight of the first day will be a luncheon for delegates at the Corona hotel commencing at 12:30 p.m.

In the morning registration will take place in the parish hall, and later Mrs. E. R. Hughes will give an address of welcome, replied to by Mrs. H. J. Montgomery of Wetaskiwin. The president, Mrs. S. F. Tackaberry, will give her report in the afternoon, and a number of secretaries will give their 1942 accounts.

On April 7, Mrs. H. P. Reid, treasurer, will give her report for the year, and the Rev. William Elkin will speak on "Religious Education in public schools."

At 8 p.m. a lenten service will be held in Christ church, and at 8:45 p.m., Miss Hilda Hellaby will speak in Christ Church hall.

Highlight of the morning session April 8, will be announcement of officers for 1943. Delegates to the Dominion Annual convention in September, 1942, will also give reports, together with standing committees.

In the afternoon, life members of the organization will hold a gathering in the Empire Room of the Hudson's Bay Company store. The new executive will meet to appoint the honorary officers, and election of delegates to the Dominion annual meeting will also take place.

Two resolutions with regard to the constitution, will also be considered.

Delegates requiring hospitality are asked to send their names immediately to the Convener of hospitality, Mrs. E. Currey, 11710 86 street, Telephone 72660.

The convention will close with a service of praise and thanksgiving in the cathedral, with Rt. Rev. W. F. Barfoot, Anglican bishop of Edmonton officiating.

Miss Thornton E. Harry Ross Are Wed Here

Snapdragon and fern were used in setting for the wedding of Blanche Hartley, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Thornton of Edmonton, to E. Harry Ross of Skagway, Alaska, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ross of Aberdeen, Washington. The ceremony took place in the Eastwood United church on Friday evening, with the Rev. A. R. Schragg officiating.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of shell pink whisper chiffon, fashioned on Grecian lines, with a draped bodice and gracefully flared skirt on a low waistline. Her chapel veil of matching pink net was held in place by a coronet of rosebuds, and she carried a cascade arrangement of blue irises and pink roses. Pale blue elbow-length lace gloves, and matching blue satin slippers formed a contrast to her ensemble. Her only piece of jewelry was a blue Alaskan diamond pendant, a gift from the bridegroom.

Bridesmaid, Miss Anna Haffo, was frocked in slipper-length, cloud blue chiffon, featuring a Peter Pan collar, full [illegible] and a bouffant skirt gathered at the natural waistline. She wore blue cornflowers in her hair and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations and tulips.

Best man was George Gratias, and ushering the guests to their places was Thomas H. Thornton, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Richard Spencer played the wedding marches and soloist during the signing of the register was Miss Kathleen Clarke, who sang, "Because."

A reception to 35 guests was held at the Cottage Tea Rooms, where the bride's table was centred by a tiered wedding cake, flanked by lighted ivory tapers and bouquets of spring flowers. Mrs. Thornton, mother of the bride received in a rose crepe ensemble of afternoon length, with accessories to match and a shoulder corsage of Talisman roses.

Toast to the bride was proposed by Wilfred Davies.

Following a brief wedding trip to Calgary and Banff, the couple will take up temporary residence in Edmonton.

Mrs. Ross is well known in Edmonton musical circles, where she has been teaching music for the past number of years.

WHY BRAKES WEAR OUT

If [illegible] one set of brake shoes of an automobile is operating inefficiently, there is excessive wear on the other three, which are then required to carry the whole load.

"Calling Mrs. Jones"

This morning you sounded excited over the phone—a little peeved. You were worried—some bad news you received gripped [illegible], and you just let go a bit. Perhaps you didn't know that the girl who answered your call was worried, too, as she didn't get her letter from her sweetheart—that perhaps the salesman, who served you the other day, feared that his son was missing—Perhaps one of us, too, has a heavy heart. We know you mean well. We mean well, too. We can still understand each other.

In this war-torn world, so many demands are made upon us. Despite every difficulty, we must carry on. We can face realities. We know you can, too, and that is why there is no use bearing a grudge or prejudice—that's what we are fighting against. We are fighting for a world of friendships. So drop in to see us, Mrs. Jones, and [illegible] smile, and we will keep on smiling long after this war is [illegible].

RENEWAL OF UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE BOOKS

To All Employers:

All Unemployment Insurance Books for the current fiscal year 1942-43 must be turned in for replacement by new books.

Between

MARCH 29th and APRIL 3rd

New Insurance Books for the fiscal year 1943-44 will be exchanged by the Local Employment and Selective Service Office in your area for expired Insurance Books.

Do not send in your Insurance Books without completing forms enclosed with circular letter No. [illegible]

If you have not received this circular letter, get in touch with your nearest Employment and Selective Service Office immediately.

Where it is necessary to quote the Employee's Insurance Number, use the number [illegible] shown on the front cover of the book (example P 4921[illegible], E 22454). Do not quote the book serial number printed on the inside pages of the book.

Protect the benefit rights of your employees by following closely the procedure outlined in the circular letter and prevent delays by acting now.

There are severe penalties for failing to make Unemployment Insurance contributions for your insured employees and for failure to renew the Insurance Books as required.

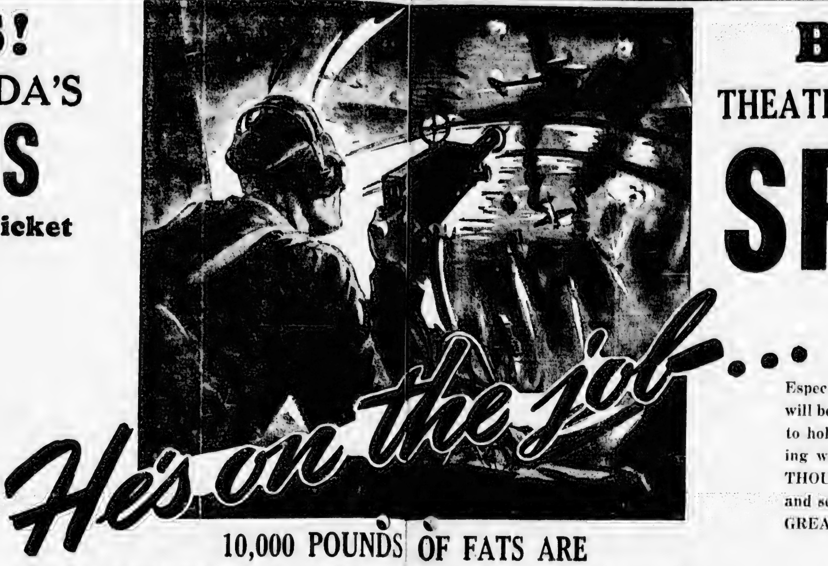
THIS IS ALL YOU HAVE TO DO:

Ask your Mother, or a neighbor, to save all the waste fats and grease from roast meats, poultry, steaks, chops and bacon, and from fish or doughnuts. Gather at least two pounds of fat . . . take it to school, at noon, on the day specified for your school. Women from the Citizen's Volunteer Bureau will be on duty between 11:45 and 1:30 on that day, to give you a FREE TICKET for two pounds of fats . . . and salvage trucks will call at the school to take the collection away on that day. Your FREE TICKET will admit you to a special feature at an Edmonton theatre, on Saturday morning, April 3rd, at 9:30. You'll not only see a dandy picture show . . . but you'll be doing an important job for Canada!



10,000 POUNDS OF FATS ARE NEEDED THIS WEEK . . . FOR HIS AMMUNITION!

BOYS AND GIRLS!

THEATRE MANAGERS IN EDMONTON WILL PROVIDE

SPECIAL SHOWS

Especially selected for children . . . the big Saturday morning program will be a highlight at every theatre in Edmonton. It will be open ONLY to holders of the FREE TICKETS. Theatre managers are co-operating with schools and Edmonton's Salvage Committee to raise TEN THOUSAND POUNDS OF WASTE FATS next week! Every householder and school child is asked to enlist in the drive for WASTE FATS AND GREASE!

Prices Unchanged On Grain Market

WINNIPEG, March 27—(CP)—Sporadic buying in the wheat pit of Winnipeg Grain Exchange Saturday left [illegible] prices [illegible] the [illegible] at $1.01[illegible] a bushel and the July at $1.01[illegible].

Only a small volume of wheat futures traded with [illegible] shippers, Eastern interests and American houses offering scattered support. There was evidence of a little profit-taking.

Export business in Canadian wheat to the United Kingdom was estimated at 500,000 bushels.

Odd cars of cash wheat sold to shippers and mills for rail shipment to Eastern Canada.

One minor trade in May oats at the [illegible] was the only business transacted in the coarse grain pit.

Fliers Injured In Plane Crash Reach Safety

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE, Alta., March 27—(CP)—Twenty-six hours after they had left Rocky Mountain House, in a horse-and-sleigh dash to rescue three injured airmen from the spot where their plane crashed against a mountain some 30 air miles from here, Dr. A. C. Grenaway and A. Whidden, provincial forestry branch inspector, returned to Rocky Mountain House at 4:30 p.m. yesterday and the injured airmen were on their way to the Penhold flying school hospital in an R.C.A.F. ambulance.

The doctor and forestry official had fought through snow-covered roads and trails, first by horse and sled and later by tractor train, to the Ram River Oil Company's buildings [illegible] ... airside.

ROUTINE FLIGHT

The three airmen, Flt. Lt. R. J. Wright, Flying Officer J. H. Somerville, both of Calgary, and LAC. A. L. Mills, Vancouver, were on a routine training flight from Calgary when their plane [illegible] the side of a mountain at approximately 2 a.m. Thursday.

What Does Your Garden Grow?

There'll be no "silver bells and cockleshells" or other exotic nonsense in the back-yard agricultural scheme this year. Food planners of the government are encouraging the planting of tomatoes, beans, leafy vegetables and root crops, not only for their essential nutritive value but because those products yield the largest quantities of food for the space they occupy. Help feed our Army and our Allies by feeding yourself. Plant a Victory Garden!

Plan Your Garden

Housewives who hope to find an abundance of fresh vegetables in markets this summer to take the place of canned good will probably be disappointed.

Market production of fresh vegetables will be reduced, rather than expanded, from last year, owing to [illegible] shortages and a larger proportion of what it produced will be taken for dehydrating and canning.

Careful experiments made before the war began proved that all the vegetables required for a family the year around can be grown in a home garden with less time than is required to shop for them in the market.

A new book, "Victory Garden Manual" just published, reveals step-by-step exactly how a well planned garden, fed and cultivated by modern labor-saving methods, [illegible] square feet [illegible] no more [illegible] than ordinary [illegible] simple skills which anyone can acquire in a few hours.

The important thing is to plan your garden and menus together so that you grow the food you will eat, no more, no less. Without planning, seed, labor and fertilizer is wasted on surplus crops, while there are shortages of other foods which the family needs. A well planned garden can supply fresh vegetables for five months, and canned vegetables for the rest of the year. And at the same time, they will far excel market vegetables, not only in flavor and tenderness, but in nutrition value as well.

Air Cadets' Parades

On Monday, squadrons 1 and 2 with the band will parade at the Normal School buildings, No. 4 I.T.S. at 7.15 p.m. The same squadrons and the band will parade again Wednesday at the same place and [illegible].

Onions and Radishes Give First Harvest Garden

Spring onions and early radishes give the first crops from the Victory garden. Both should be ready to eat in three weeks or a few days less from the time they are planted and both can be planted as soon as the ground is prepared.

Radishes have little nutritive value, but are valued as appetizers and a crisp, spicy radish from your own home garden is certainly stimulating. One or two of them will be relished, but one or two dozen will begin to pall; and in all too many gardens there are dozens to eat, where two would be sufficient.

The cause of this is the very short season that early radishes remain edible. The earlier they are the shorter this season is, because they are growing fast, and quickly pass by the edible stage on their way to the goal of all plant life, the production of seed.

With radishes, as with other crops, you must sow according to what you will eat. Figure out the number you will use in a week and estimate that twelve early radishes can be produced in a foot of garden row. Then sow a week's supply of an early variety at a time. Midseason radishes will be usable for two weeks so two weeks supply of them can be sown. The early varieties do not grow well in hot weather. If you want a [illegible] all summer, sow a late, summer variety for that season. But frequent sowings in small lots is a good rule for all except winter radishes which take two months to mature and remain good for six weeks. They grow very large, some weighing several pounds.

One way to grow early radishes is to mix them with the seeds of parsley, parsnips, carrots and beets, all of which are slow to germinate. Not more than a tenth as many radishes as the other seeds should be used. The radishes will germinate quickly, "marking the row" where the other seeds lie, which will assist you in cultivating. Be sure to pull and eat the radishes as they mature before they can crowd the slower crops.

For the production of green onions larger sets are better than the very small ones. Onion sets from ¾ inch to 1 inch in diameter or slightly larger, grow faster, because there has been stored up in the bulb plant food which is quickly made available for the growing plant, and green onions grown from large sets are likely to be more crisp and tender than when the same size of green onion is produced from smaller sets.

Teachers' Pay Starts Storm In Legislature

A second amendment, [illegible] by Mayor A. Davison, Independent, Calgary, would have made the province of Alberta responsible for $5 per month of the proposed $75 minimum monthly salary for the fiscal year 1943-44, the necessary funds to be secured from a vote in the estimates for Elementary and Secondary school grants. Mayor Davison's amendment was ruled out of order by Chairman Hartle after a lengthy point-of-order discussion.

LOST ON VOICE VOTE

A third amendment, by E. J. Martin, Independent, Peace River, was on a different section of the Act and [illegible] was lost on a voice vote.

The House [illegible]

J. H. Walker, Independent, Warner, asked the government if it knew just how "popular" the bill raising the salaries really was. He said he had letters from many parts of his constituency, asking that he oppose the bill.

Mr. Walker said they thought in his district the $60 raise in the minimum would mean a $60 raise in all teachers' salaries.

OPPOSE INCREASE

Fred Anderson, Social Credit, Calgary, stated the objection raised by Mr. McLachlan that the average earning of western farmers was $600 per year was no reason for not raising the teachers' salaries.

[illegible] training to attract more trainees to the Normal schools with the salaries [illegible]

He told of making a survey in the high school in which he taught, of the students who were willing to become teachers, and could find only three who would do so. Asked why there were no more volunteers for the teaching profession than this, students had replied there was more money to be made in other professions and industries.

[illegible] $900 per year [illegible] $75 a month [illegible]

"A dishwasher is worth $75 a month," he added. "Surely we can look upon the teaching profession as most important for the good of the nation."

PROPOSES $1,000

The Lac Ste. Anne member said if he thought it would have a chance of survival, he would propose an amendment that the minimum be raised to $1,000 per year instead of $900.

The ability of farmers to pay the increased salaries should be considered first, George MacLachlan [illegible] Pembina, stated. He pointed out that many farmers had left their farms and [illegible] the woods for more lucrative fields of endeavor.

[illegible]

"I'll grant you the teachers deserve their raise," Mr. MacLachlan added, "but the farmers should get first consideration, as they are in the lower wage bracket of the two."

The change, he thought, should [illegible] according to the times.

A. J. Hooke, Social Credit, Rocky Mountain House, said [illegible] the teaching profession is the [illegible] professions.

OPPOSITION CERTAIN

If the minimum salary for teachers was $540 instead of $840 and it was proposed to raise it to $600 instead of $900, it would be opposed in this house and by school boards, J. Percy Page, Independent, Edmonton, told the house.

[illegible]

Mr. Page, who is in charge of a commercial school in Edmonton, said a Grade 11 commercial student was able to make $65 a month when through schooling, but a Normal student, who had Grade 12 training, could only make $70, after the special training received.

Mr. Hutchison is guaranteed to make even a confirmed dunce do a little thinking, when he points to the fact that before the war politicians never specifically promised prosperity.

[illegible] to try and establish conditions favorable for prosperity. Now the finished product is promised.

[illegible] Mr. Hutchison 100 per cent when he asks the brutal question of what has [illegible]

In the old days politicians would admit—when in power—that permanent prosperity was something just outside their domain. But now they make no such admission.

[illegible]

And Mr. Hutchison has a few disquieting observations to make about post-war trade. If we are to continue at peace with the rest of the world and raise our own standard of living we must not only sell far more to foreign countries than ever in history but must be prepared to buy back more than twice as much as we ever did before.

Canada has been industrialized since the war to an extent that [illegible]

WELL "UNCLE MALCOLM"- HERE WE ARE, EH? ALL STILL ALIVE AND KICKING!
YES, ANNIE! I DON'T KNOW HOW YOU EVER DID IT---I'VE LIVED IN THIS CASTLE FOR YEARS BUT I NEVER KNEW OF THESE SECRET STAIRS AND PASSAGES-
MOSTLY LUCK THAT I FOUND THEM. BUT I GUESS THERE MUST BE OTHER SECRET PASSAGES I STILL DON'T KNOW ABOUT-CUTTHROATS!
NO! UNDER IT! IN AND OUT--BUT THEY'RE ARMED--IF ONLY WE HAD A FEW WEAPONS--
OH! THAT REMINDS ME--WE'VE GOT THOSE BIRDS' PISTOLS--TWENTY OF 'EM-AND AMMUNITION-SEE?
GREAT SCOTT! YOU HAVE DONE A FINE JOB! COME ON! WHY MUST WE SKULK IN THESE WALLS, LIKE VERMIN?
THAT OLD GOAT, WHO WAS PRETENDIN' TO BE YOU, IS DOWN IN TH' LIBRARY---
GOOD! JUST THE ONE I WANT TO SEE! WEARING MY CLOTHES! POSING AND STRUTTING! SMOKING MY BEST CIGARS! AR-R-R!
GET AWAY? HO! THIS CRINGING, LEERING IMBECILE GET AWAY? NOT THIS TIME-
MERCY! MERCY! SPARE ME! I'LL DO ANYTHING!
HO! HO! HO! I'LL SAY YOU WILL! AS ANNIE TOLD YOU ONCE BEFORE, "TAKE OFF YOUR WHISKERS! I KNOW YOU!"
OW!
AND TAKE OFF THOSE CLOTHES OF MINE! NOT THAT I'D EVER WEAR 'EM AGAIN-- BUT NEITHER SHALL YOU!
YEOW!
HERE WE ARE! YOU THOUGHT YOU HEARD AUGUST TALKING TO YOU, EH? WELL, YOU'RE GOING TO MEET AUGUST NOW!
